Cuban Army Relief Unit Breaks Into Santa Clara

Reinforcements Smash Rebel Ring

HAVANA (UPI) — Troops of President Fulgencio Batista claimed Wednesday an important success in the four-day-old battle with Fidel Castro's rebels for Santa Clara, strategic capital of Las Villas province in central Cuba.

The army announced at noon that it had succeeded in ramming through rebel lines an armored column of reinforcements into Santa Clara. The army said there were "hundreds" of rebel casualties in the fighting.

In addition, Cuban army sources here said rebel attempts to break the government defense lines around Santa Clara had failed. Only small rebel combat units had been able to infiltrate the outskirts of Santa Clara, the army sources said.

Claim Heavy Losses

An army communique announcing the successful breakthrough of the armored relief column said rebel attempts to halt the convoy on the central highway between La Esperanza and Cascajal were "repulsed with heavy (enemy) losses."

Earlier Wednesday the rebel radio had claimed the insurgents were holding back the government troops, but later the rebels virtually admitted the government success.

The rebel radio at Cruces was heard relaying a report from another rebel station at 1:30 p.m. to Argentine-born Ernesto "Che" Guevara, insurgent commander at Santa Clara, saying that army forces from Matanzas "are advancing and it is impossible for us to hold them presently."

Fight Running Battle

The government communique indicated that a running battle was being fought along 23 miles of the arterial central highway that bisects Cuba from east to west, between Cascajal and La Esperanza. La Esperanza is about eight miles northwest of Santa Clara and Cascajal is about 30 miles northwest of La Esperanza.

In Washington, the United States reaffirmed its hands off position in the conflict. Assistant Secretary of State for Latin American Affairs Roy R. Rubottom Jr. told a Senate foreign relations subcommittee that "there is no planned intervention contemplated by the American government in the Cuban internal strife."

Marine DI Acquitted Of Recruits' Charges

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (UPI)—A Marine drill instructor was acquitted by general court martial Wednesday on charges that he slugged and mistreated recruits and accepted money from them at this Leatherneck boot camp.

A verdict of acquittal was returned by the seven-member general court trying S. Sgt. Ralph A. J. Grant, 26, of Racine, Wis., former senior drill instructor for an Ohio "steel valley" platoon here.

A Korean combat veteran with 8½ years Marine service, Grant was accused of striking at least two recruits with mess kits and with forcing each of 69 recruits to contribute $10 to a "sergeant's kitty." He denied the charges, and the defense claimed the injuries to the two recruits occurred in rifle range accidents and that the money was for platoon laundry bills and other incidental expenses.

Grant stood at attention beside his civilian lawyer, while Lt. Col. Richard S. Johnson, president of the court, read the verdict climaxing the three-day trial. The court deliberated 90 minutes.

"Sgt. Grant, it is my duty to inform you that the court has found you not guilty on all charges against you," Johnson said. Grant saluted and turned to receive congratulations as he left the court room. Many of the members of the recruit platoon offered congratulations. Several testified in Grant's behalf.

390 New Year Holiday Traffic Fatalities Seen

By United Press International

Safety experts made a calculated guess Americans would make a good start o the New Year Wednesday night by sparing each other's lives on the highways.

As celebrants whooped it up from coast to coast for the birth of 1959, the National Safety Council statisticians figured the traffic accidents would kill 390 persons between 6 p.m. Wednesday and the end of the holiday weekend at midnight Sunday.

The predicted toll represented 40 more deaths than the 350 normal for a non-holiday period of 102 hours in January. But it would be 109 less than the 599 killed in traffic during last weekend's Christmas holiday.

The Safety Council and police hoped the impact of the Christmas toll would carry over into the New Year's weekend and deliver a bonus of lives saved.

Past records showed the New Year's holiday toll generally falls far below the highway slaughter over Christmas, the most dangerous holiday of the year. However, 423 persons died in traffic during the four-day New Year's holiday of 1952 and 412 persons were killed over the 102-hour 1956 holiday.

Meany Hints Labor To Fight Budget-Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany indicated Wednesday organized labor would buck President Eisenhower's budget-trimming efforts in the next Congress.

Meany said in a forecast for 1959 that the nation must provide federal aid for housing, depressed areas, road-building, school construction and "countless other fields."

Dixie Senators To Chart Battle For Filibuster

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Southern senators will meet next Monday to lay plans for an all-out fight against a bipartisan move to ram through a tighter Senate anti-filibuster rule, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) leader of the southern bloc, invited his colleagues to attend the strategy session.

Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) disclosed that he had returned to Washington early to join in preparations for the fight, which is expected to erupt on the Senate floor on Wednesday, the opening day of the new session.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) and a group of other liberal Democrats and Republicans have served notice they will attempt to change the Senate rules to permit a majority of the Senate membership to limit debate after 15 days.

Under present rules, a vote of 66 senators—a constitutional two-thirds vote of the entire senate—is required to choke off a filibuster, the traditional weapon of southerners seeking to kill civil rights legislation.

Russell invited 17 of his southern colleagues to the Monday meeting. Invitations were not extended to the senators from Texas and Tennessee, all of whom voted for the final version of the 1957 civil rights bill.

Allies Reject Russ Demand To Quit Berlin

Challenge Kremlin To Big 4 Parley On Europe Security

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Western Allies, bluntly rejecting Soviet demands that they quit Berlin by June 1, challenged the Kremlin Wednesday to take part in a four-power conference on the overall problem of European security.

But the United States, Britain and France warned the Russians in separate but similar notes that they would not take part in any diplomatic discussions "under menace or ultimatum."

The Western Big Three told the Soviet Union in unmistakable terms they do not intend to yield to the Russians' Nov. 27 demand that they leave West Berlin and allow the former German capital to become a Communist-encircled "free city."

They also served notice they would not recognize the Communist regime of East Germany even if the Russians carry out their threat to turn over East Berlin and the corridors leading to the city to the East Germans.

Drafted Notes In Paris

The Western notes were drafted in Paris last week in consultation with the West German government. They received full backing Monday from the permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

All were in greement that the West must insist the Russians respect its right to remain in Berlin and to have access to the city in accordance with an Allied postwar agreement.

The notes were made public shortly after they were delivered to the Kremlin by the Western embassies in Moscow. U.S. officials were said to be anxious to get the U. S. note in the hands of Russian leaders in time for ample study before Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan leaves Moscow for a two-week visit to the United States.

It was understood Berlin was among the subjects Mikoyan wants to discuss with top authorities here. He was expected to arrive in this country by plane early next week.

Reject Showdown Ultimatum

But the United States and its Allies made it plain they do not intend to negotiate with Russia over Berlin or any other problem if the Kremlin intends to present them with any showdown ultimatum.

The U.S. note said "it is assured" that the Nov. 27 note of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev on the question of Berlin was not intended to be a "menace or ultimatum."

If the Soviet note was so intended, the U.S. note added, this government "would be obliged immediately to raise a protest in the strongest terms."

The Allies served notice they would hold the Soviet government responsible for fulfilling all its obligations regarding Berlin, including the right of the Big Three to have free access to their sectors of the city.

Atlas Broadcasts Greetings To GIs

HINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — The nation's orbiting Atlas satellite is broadcasting New Year's greetings to men of the armed services.

Brig. Gen. Eric H. F. Svensson, commander of Ft. Stewart, Ga., recorded the message that was sent to the satellite by the Ft. Stewart tracking station.

The 150-word voice and teletype message was left with the satellite so any of the three other tracking stations could receive it. They can also erase it and transmit a message of their own.

Liu Apparently Leads Mao Successor Race

HONG KONG (AP)—The Moscow-trained Chinese Communist theoretician, Liu Shao-chi, appears to lead the sweepstakes on a replacement for Mao Tze-tung as president of Red China.

At least, Liu got top billing in Peiping's official press during Mao's recent absence from the capital.

A copy of Peiping's People's Daily arriving Wednesday had a seven-column picture of an agricultural conference last Friday. Liu was in the central position of honor, flanked by Premier Chou En-lai and Marshal Chu Teh, the vice president.

New Space Age Greets '59 Gaily Despite Tension

By The Associated Press

The new space age took time out from its tensions Wednesday night to give a cheery welcome to the New Year—whatever it may bring.

The 1959 cherub found that Father Time of 1958 had left many problems unresolved, such as the continuing cold war and a looming Berlin crisis.

But it was New Year's Eve, the traditional time for gaiety and hope for better things ahead, and joy reigned as usual.

Both sides of the Iron Curtain joined in celebrating. It was party time in the Kremlin as well as in Kalamazoo.

In Christian countries, it was a time also for prayer, with Watch Night services contrasting solemnly with the general revelry.

President Eisenhower observed the evening quietly with relatives and friends at his Gettysburg, Pa. farm.

In New York, Times Square storekeepers boarded up their windows for protection against the crush of celebrators.

An annual point of interest there is a lighted globe atop a flagpole on the New York Times tower. The globe starts descending a few seconds before midnight. Its arrival at the bottom signals the precise arrival of 1959 to resounding whoops and cheers from the onlookers.

A prosperity note was reflected by New York's swankier night spots, some of which charged $60 a couple, plus tax, tips and liquor, with all reservations booked solid.

The average charge ranged around $20 to $30 a couple, and tapered down to 15-cent beers in neighborhood taverns.

Various localities in the United States had their own ways of noting the occasion.

Bangor, Maine, celebrated with a huge bonfire of discarded Christmas trees, touching off also the old lumber port's 125th anniversary observance.

Fireworks were shot off the top of Pike's Peak by the AdAmAn Club of Colorado Springs, which adds one member a year. The firing of muskets resounded at Cherryville, N.C., in accordance with a 150-year-old custom believed to have come to this country from Germany.

Philadelphia's celebration centered around the opening of the Penn Center ice skating rink, one similar to that in New York's Rockefeller Center.

63 Floats Ready For Rose Parade

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Sixty-three floats, pretty girls, bands and millions of flowers are ready for the 70th Tournament of Roses Parade.

"Adventures in Flowers" is the theme of Thursday's edition of the annual New Year's Day pageant, a dazzling, two-hour spectacle for thousands jamming a five-mile route.

The procession and preliminaries will be nationally televised by NBC starting at 11:30 a.m. EST.

Ike And Mamie Spend New Year Eve Baby-Sitting

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — President and Mrs. Eisenhower spent New Year's Eve baby-sitting with their four grandchildren Wednesday night and playing host to some grown-ups at a small dinner party.

The Eisenhowers quietly rang in the New Year at their Gettysburg farm after the President worked during the day on a new draft of his Jan. 9 State of the Union message.

Maj. and Mrs. John S. Eisenhower, son and daughter-in-law of the President and first lady, had the night off in Washington while grandpa and grandma took care of the youngsters.

Debre Slated To Be Premier

PARIS (UPI) — Informed political quarters reported Wednesday Premier Charles de Gaulle has formally asked Gaullist leader Michel Debre to be the first premier of France's Fifth Republic.

Debre is a 46-year-old lawyer who has been justice minister in De Gaulle's provisional government. An official communique on his appointment was expected to be issued next week.

Sources said in selecting Debre for the top post, De Gaulle overruled strong opposition of European unification advocates who considered Debre too nationalistic and cool toward the idea of a united Europe.

De Gaulle, who has been premier since he returned to power June 1, will take over Jan. 8 as first "strongman" president of the Fifth Republic, with one of his extensive powers being that of naming the premier.

Informed sources said De Gaulle has asked Debre to complete formation of his new cabinet by the middle of next week so the new government list could be published simultaneously with De Gaulle's official installation.

Social Security Taxes, Pensions Increase Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Some 74 million Americans will start shelling out about $2 a month more in social security taxes Thursday to build up retirement benefits for their old age.

Another 12,300,000 Americans will get an immediate 7 per cent hike in their monthly pension checks. Both groups can thank or blame — as the case may be — changes made in the social security law by the last Congress.

The tax increase on ordinary workers will be matched, as usual by their employers. Self-employed persons covered by social security will pay a slightly larger increase percentagewise entirely out of their own pockets.

The 12,300,000 persons already on the social security rolls will receive their beefed-up January pension check the first week in February. They don't have to make a special application. The 7 per cent increase is automatic.

However, wives of disabled pensioners must apply to obtain special new benefits voted for them.

As a result of the new changes, nearly half a million people who have not been covered before will become eligible for benefits as well as taxes. They include certain state and local government employes and some seasonal workers as well as others.

Workers who previously paid 2¼ per cent on earnings up to $4,200 will now pay 2½ per cent on earnings up to $4,800. The tax will be withheld from their weekly paychecks.

Self-employed workers covered by social security will kick in 3¾ per cent on the first $4,800 instead of the old 3 per cent on $4,200.

The benefits were raised to bring social security relief checks in line with the rise in the cost of living. The higher taxes are expected to increase social security revenues by $1,100,000,000 in 1959.

Europe Common Market To Help U.S. In Long Run

NEW YORK (AP)—"Some companies are going to get hurt. But in the long run American business will be better off."

That's how one U.S. industrialist sizes up the European Common Market and its probable impact in this country.

First building blocks of the new Common Market structure will be put in place Thursday. Six old and sophisticated, but amazingly vigorous, European nations will lower the barriers that have hampered the free flow of trade with one another.

If present plans are carried out the six countries will eventually form an economic union that will boost living standards and industrial output on the Continent to new peaks.

U.S. businessmen view the trend with mixed emotions.

"It will be an improvement all around," says Vice President S. Riley Williams of Worthington Corp., manufacturer of industrial equipment. "It will make things a lot easier for us—we'll have one big market to concentrate on instead of half a dozen little markets each hemmed in by its own tariff wall."

Frank X. White, vice president of American Machine & Foundry Co., declares: "I'm optimistic. I feel the basic objective of the scheme is to increase consumption. It may create a bigger market for American goods than we've ever dreamed of."

White concedes a booming European economy will also mean tough competition for American goods in non-European markets like Latin America and Asia. But this, too, may be all to the good, he maintains, if it forces U.S. companies to keep one jump ahead of their European rivals in technical progress and manufacturing know-how.

200 Revisions In Federal Excise Taxes Take Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1959, about 200 changes in federal excise taxes go into effect. The government figures to lose 42 million dollars a year in revenue as a result.

The average American won't notice much difference since 42 million is a fraction of the 8½ billion dollars which Uncle Sam expects to collect this year in excises, or sales taxes as they are sometimes called.

Here is a ummary of some of the more important revisions:

Admissions taxes—The first $1 charged for admission to theatres, ball parks, lectures, etc., will be tax exempt. The 10 per cent admissions tax will apply only to any amount above $1. Formerly tickets costing 90 cents or less were tax exempt, but the full price of more expensive tickets was taxed.

Luggage and jewelry taxes — Congress has eliminated broad definitions of items taxable at 10 per cent and substituted lists of specific articles subject to tax. This levy is assessed at the retail level.

Cabaret tax—Milk bars of the sort frequented by teen-agers are now exempt. Formerly the 20 per cent tax applied to all establishments serving food or drink and providing entertainment or dancing.

Documentary stamp taxes—The basis for taxing securities and other documents and stock transfers has been revised. In the case of securities, the tax formerly was based on the par value. Henceforth it will be based on their market value.

Amusement and gambling devices tax - The revision extends the assessment to all such devices, no matter how they are operated.

Brush Blaze Believed Set By Arsonist

Flames, Swept By High Wind, Menace Hundreds Of Homes

TOPANGA CANYON, Calif. (AP)—A brush fire believed set by a firebug burst explosively through the Santa Monica Mountains Wednesday. It burned several homes in its first two hours and threatened hundreds of others. Thousands fled its path.

The blaze broke out around 9:45 a.m. on the inland side of the mountains, which separate the San Fernando Valley from the sea.

Two hours later a second fire broke out only two miles away in the exclusive valley community of Woodland Hills. It, too, threatened homes.

Police and sheriff's deputies raced their squad cars through the populous area, urging residents to evacuate. Cars with women and children streamed out. Many residents stayed to fight it out.

40-Mile Winds Spread Fire

The scene is in brushy hills bordering the Pacific about 20 miles west of downtown Los Angeles. Earlier this month, only a little farther west, a disastrous blaze near Malibu Beach blackened thousands of acres and destroyed a score of homes.

Firemen said this one, at the start at least, looks worse. They expect it to burn the eight miles to the sea.

The first blaze was swept by 40 m.p.h. winds down Topanga Canyon, which curls westward through the hills toward the Pacific Ocean.

At least eight homes were touched off in the canyon's Glenview section before noon. Others were believed lost.

Paul Clark, assistant county fire chief, said after the second blaze started in Woodland Hills, "This is definitely arson."

He said firemen have no idea who the arsonist is.

Major Disaster Feared

By shortly after noon nearly 1,000 fire fighters were on the scene. All available personnel in the state were called for.

Officials planned for a major disaster. The Red Cross set up an evacuation center.

Ralph Wade, Los Angeles city fire captain, said at the scene: "We can't stop it. Too much wind, too low humidity, too much fire. All we can do is concentrate on saving houses, and seeing that no one gets hurt."

The area for several days has been swept by warm, dry winds from the desert, making the brush tinder-dry.

Cop Unionizing Drive Outlined

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Teamsters officials said Wednesday organizers would wage a campaign in January and February to bring police in New York City and other parts of the nation into James R. Hoffa's union.

At the same time, the prospect of Teamster-affiliated policemen in the nation's largest city provoked a blistering statement from Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner. He said his administration would not countenance unionization of New York police by the Teamsters or any other union.

Henry Feinstein, head of a city employes Teamster Local, discussed plans for police unionizing at a special press conference. He had announced previously that the un-New York police department Jan. 12.

Wednesday, he added that the drive would be extended from New York to other towns and cities throughout the country.

Babies Quarantined On New York Arrival

NEW YORK (AP)—Twenty-nine unvaccinated American babies who have arrived here from Germany since Sunday have been quarantined for 14 days because of a smallpox outbreak in Germany.

The babies are being kept company by their mothers, most of them wives of servicemen, during the detention period.

None of the babies, who range in age up to 11 months, is known to have smallpox, said Joseph B. O'Connor, regional director of the U.S. Department of Health, education and Welfare.

Wife Accused Of Murder In Mate's 'Suicide' Death

TOWSON, Md. (AP)—The mystery-shrouded shooting of a Navy Department employe — at first thought to be suicide — was termed murder Wednesday. Baltimore County police charged his hospitalized wife and said the motive was jealousy.

Police Chief Gilbert Deyle said the woman, Mrs. Margaret L. D'Ambrosio, 29, tried to commit suicide.

The body of Michael D'Ambrosio, 32, was found in a burning automobile on a lonely lane near Harbor Field on Thanksgiving night. Police said he had been fatally shot in the chest. His head and upper part of his body was scorched. A pistol was found on the floor of the car.

The medical examiner's staff and police stated after an autopsy it appeared to be a case of suicide. But authorities kept on investigating.

They said he apparently was shot somewhere else and his body driven to the lane.

Mrs. D'Ambrosio, mother of two girls, was found wandering on a Dundalk street in suburban Baltimore last Saturday morning with a bullet wound in her chest.

Patrolman Adam Brandt said the woman had called out to him, "Help me. I've been shot."

She told police before undergoing surgery that she'd received a mysterious phone call while at her mother's home early Saturday morning.

The caller told her to come to her home, said Mrs. D'Ambrosio, and when she arrived a stranger in the basement shot her.

Chief Deyle said a .32 caliber pistol with which Mrs. D'Ambrosio was shot was found outside her home Sunday.

He did not elaborate on the jealousy motive.

D'Ambrosio was working on a classified project at The Martin Co.

Population To Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Census Bureau estimated Wednesday the U. S. population would hit a record high of 175,600,000 on New Year's Day and then climb to about 180 million during 1959. The nation's population increased by an estimated 2,900,000 in 1958 and now stands about 24,500,000 above the 151,100,000 counted in the 1950 census.

Seasonal Rise In Joblessness Seen By Kimble

BALTIMORE (AP) — Total employment in Maryland dropped 2,800 in November, the Department of Employment Security reported Wednesday.

At the same time, the jobless roles were down 2,300.

The department said it was the second consecutive month that both employment and unemployment were down. And it was the sixth straight month in which there was a decline in number of workers unemployed.

Robert B. Kimble, executive director of DES, said the factors causing the changes in November were to a very large extent seasonal.

But looking to the new year, Kimble foresees a seasonal increase in unemployment as a result of post-holiday layoffs. Most are expected to be temporary.

The director said a simultaneous drop in employment and unemployment occurs whenever a relatively large number of workers withdraws from the labor force.

Total civilian labor force stood at 1,090,200 in November. This was down from the 1,098,200 of October but higher than the 1,074,200 of November 1957.

The states's unemployed as recorded on DES records fell to 65,200 in November, down from 67,500 of October but well over the 42,300 out of work in November 1957. The jobless represented six percent of the civilian labor force in November, compared with 3.9 per cent in the same month of 1957.

The department said that despite a statewide drop in persons employed, the Baltimore area registered an increase.

Washington County's branch office of the DES reported the situation was worse there than it has been in the past 13 years with more than 3,100 persons drawing unemployment benefits.

Manager Matthew J. White said the figure is expected to climb to 3,500 next week. He blamed seasonal layoffs, firms closing down for year-end inventories and other factors.

Another 2,550 state residents exhausted their full 26 weeks of regular benefits in November, bringing the 12-month total to 31,220. And 1,851 ran out of their 13-week extension under special federal-state legislation, bringing the total in that category to 8,911.

A spokesman said very few of those who have exhausted their 39 months of benefit payments can qualify for a "double dip"—a second round of jobless compensation. Various factors go into figuring eligibility but the main one is a jobless worker has to be re-employed for a certain period during two quarters of the year.

The ancient Indians of New Mexico built the first apartment houses in America. They built community dwellings containing as many as 1,200 rooms.

Bones Dug Up From Dog Cemetery Those Of Girl

BALTIMORE (AP)—Bones dug up from a dog cemetery are those of a baby girl removed from a nursing home by her father, Dr. Russell S. Fisher, Maryland medical examiner, reported Wednesday.

"I have no hestiation in concluding this is the Motherwell child," Dr. Fisher said after exhaustive examination of the bones found in Frederick.

District of Columbia police have been searching for Larry Lloyd Motherwell, 42, for the past couple of months.

He took his daughter from a nursing home in Takoma Park on June 19, 1954. She was 14 months old and listed as a Mongoloid.

The police search for Motherwell led to Frederick. A woman remembered that Motherwell, a construction worker, had buried a box on the farm of a kennel operator on June 20, 1954.

She told police Motherwell said it contained a dog "which had saved his life in Korea."

Police dug up the box. It contained what appeared to be the skeleton of a baby girl, two nursing bottles, a plastic toy and a hair brush.

Dr. Fisher said the bones are of a white female in the 12-15 month age group and "shows evidence of some retardation, although not a typical Mongoloid."

He also said the objects in the box had been absolutely identified as those with the Motherwell baby when she left the nursing home.

"In view of the general coincidence of the skeletal features and absolute identification of the objects in the box, I have no hesitation in concluding this is the Motherwell child," Dr. Fisher said.

"I do not have the cause of death."

Dr. Fisher said he is mailing his report to the state's attorney of Frederick County. The county will have a new prosecutor next month, Edwin Nikirk. He will succeed Samuel Barrick who was elected last month to the state senate.

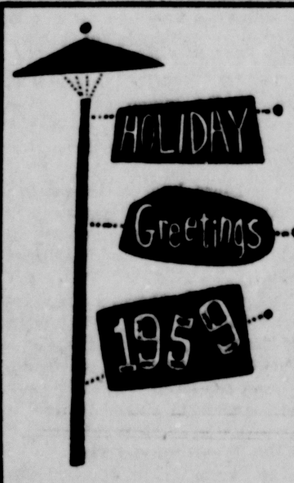

Barrick had kept abreast of developments in the case which began Sept. 2, but taken no formal action. He said Wednesday he would have no comment before receiving Dr. Fisher's report and then would confer with Nikirk.

Washington police opened the case when C. Michael Dabrohua of Winnetka, Ill., reported his 72-year-old half sister, Mrs. Pearl Putney of the District of Columbia, had disappeared.

The police started a simultaneous search for her and Motherwell, who had been living in Washington. They thought they found traces of him in Miami and in Marysville, Calif., along with Mrs. Putney.

Motherwell's first wife died and he had married a second time.

Six European Nations Dip Carefully Into Common Market Experiment

EDITOR'S NOTE—The common market which Europe will start Thursday holds many promises—and considerable doubt—for manufacturers in some of the countries concerned. This article tells what effects the market is expected to have.

By DAVID MASON

PARIS (AP) — Six Western European nations somewhat gingerly dip their toes into the open waters of free trade Jan. 1.

There is some apprehension almost everywhere, even though the course has been carefully charted on the basis of a successful pilot run.

As the Common Market was about to emerge from pages of the Rome Treaty, Associated Press correspondents in France, Italy, West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg found a mixture of concern for the opening phases, coupled with general optimism over the long course.

A good deal of comfort comes from the European Coal and Steel Community — Schuman Plan — which has given Little Europe a progressively free market in those base products for nearly six years.

Interviews with big and little businessmen, government economists and politicians show these concerns and ultimate hopes as Europe advances toward the end of the free trade rainbow:

FRANCE — For the French, with perhaps the longest history of rigid protectionism, the Common Market represents a clear break with the past, a distinct reorientation of her economy.

Provisions of the market treaty also offer the prospect of much needed investment to bring her still-substantial African areas into full productive bloom. As long as the stubborn Algerian rebellion continues, France will have little money for daring development schemes of her own.

Many of France's highly protected industries, often using antiquated production methods, have real trouble turning out items with competitive price tags.

Just last Saturday the De Gaulle government devalued the franc. The immediate effect will be to make French products cost less in foreign currency. Thus French items should sell more readily within the Common Market area. However, at the same time, France announced price increases in such basic items as gasoline, coal and transport. This cannot help but be reflected in production costs, so some of the advantage from devaluation will be wiped out.

But there is solid optimism in France. World-renowned French trademarks, the universal appeal of French skill, will bring France through some adjustment crises.

ITALY — For such Italian industries as sewing machines and typewriter manufacturing the Common Market is expected to be a boon from the start. They have already proved themselves in international competition. A major portion of costs of the light mechanical industry is labor, and Italy has a labor surplus. Heavy mechanical industries, where raw material costs are more important, may have difficulty. These include steel mills, shipyards, chemical plants and automakers. Itay, like several other Common Market countries, looks forward to increased foreign investment, particularly from America and Britain.

WEST GERMANY — The strapping industrial giant of the Common Market has its worries. It is expected that the leather, glassware and ceramics industries will suffer from stiff Italian competition.

The steel industry is likely to be affected because the French mills are closer to industrial sites in southern Germany than the Ruhr mills.

Some industries may go under. Certainly many will be forced to make elaborate changes. Among developments foreseen is a tendency toward concentration of industry.

THE NETHERLANDS—For the Dutch, the Common Market is a painful affair. None of the six nations needs fully open commerce more. Holland fears the Common Market might become a top-heavy organization for consolidation of French-German interests.

The Netherlands is Britain's best customer in Europe, and now the Dutch will have to turn more to her five Continental partners.

BELGIUM AND LUXEMBOURG — For Belgium the Common Market will have little immediate impact because she has the lowest present tariffs in the community.

Her main export market is outside the market area for many products. In the long run, however, many small companies will probably find it impossible to compete alone. Belgium on the other hand is becoming a choice site for establishment of American subsidiaries.

Luxembourg's main industrial activity is steel, which is controlled by the Coal and Steel Pool. The Common Market will have little immediate effect.

Togetherness*
the tradition that gives the young something to grow on.

Father Time has a way of uniting the old and the new . . . of passing along from generation to generation the meanings and principles that are important. Togetherness — family strength, understanding, unity — are more needed than ever before to give the young something to grow on: the mature something to live by.

In 1959, we hope to serve you and your family in the continuing tradition of helpfulness and interest which we have built up through the years.

And our New Year's wish to you is simply that the tradition of Togetherness — however it fits into your life be an inspiration and a goal, unlocking doors, and bringing joy to the hours.

Story Of Boiling Water That Froze So Fast Ice Stayed Warm Wins Tall Tale Award

BURLINGTON, Wis. (UPI)—The way Lou Powers tells about it, the weather got so cold at Ortonville, Minn., last winter that it won him a prize.

There was this teakettle full of boiling water, Lou said; and the weather was so cold that it froze the water so fast the ice was still warm.

And when he opened the door and kicked out the family cat for the night, he froze his foot.

Powers' story won the 29th annual Burlington Liars' Club award for the best tall tale of 1958.

Honorable mention went to three liars:.

William Mc Ilrath of Danbury, Conn., reported there was a blood shortage when his outfit landed on Guam in 1944. A Navy doctor solved the problem by capturing large mosquitoes on the island, shoving their beaks into a patient's arm and squeezing until the patient's face took on the right shade of pink.

Mrs. Thoms. Naylon of Beaver Dam, Wis., told one about a fisherman who was asked if he was catching anything. "Sure," the angler said, "some oversize and some undersize." The man said, "I'm the state game warden," and the fisherman replied, "well, I'm the biggest liar in the state of Wisconsin."

Harry Shapeero of Seattle, Wash., also got honorable mention with a tale about a navy buddy of his in the South Pacific during World War II who was bitten by a malaria carrying mosquito. The sailor pulled through and the mosquito died of acute alcoholism.

The president of the Liar's Club, O.C. Hulett, said he received between 1,000 and 1,200 lies this year. "It was a real good year. We're established now," Hulett said.

Club officers selected the best lies and also decided not to recognize statehood of Alaska until residents there send in as many lies as Texas. Hulett said "we hope that shakes them up a bit up there."

Hulett cited several other entires as noteworthy this year. One story by Dr. F.C. Holsom of Ventura, Calif., had to do with an old man who fished each day for years from the same spot on a pier and finally wore a hole in the water.

Andy Graves of Washington, Tex., told one about a big mosquito that ate a mule and picked his teeth with the wagon tongue. Hulett recalled one earlier along the same lines about a pack of giant mosquitoes that ate a team of mules and then played horseshoes to see which one would get the harness.

Mary Elizabeth Wheeler Is Bride Of F. T. Downs

Miss Mary Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Wheeler, Spring Gap, became the bride of Frederick Taylor Downs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Downs, of Williamsport December 27.

The wedding ceremony was solemnized at 2 p. m. in St. Mary's Catholic Church, with Rev. Robert Hopkins officiating. The altars were banked with poinsettias and candelabra of lighted tapers.

Miss Ann Leonard was the bride's maid of honor and Miss Louise Graham, Miss Susan Downs, of Williamsport, and Miss Frances Ann Wheeler, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. Malinda Patterson was the flower girl. Thomas A. Downs Jr. served as his brother's best man, while Richard Wheeler, John Blake and Edward Andrews were the ushers. Miss Joan Luttrell sang "Ave Maria," with Miss Earlene Humbertson at the organ. She also played the traditional wedding march from the opera Lohengrin and Mendelsohn's recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of Chantilly lace, fashioned on Empire lines, with tight bodice; a scalloped neckline outlined in seed pearls; long fitted lace sleeves; and a panel of the lace to the hemline. The back of the skirt was of nylon tulle. With it she wore a fingertip length veil of French illusion held by a half hat of Chantilly lace which also was scalloped with seed pears. Completing her costume, she carried a cascade bouquet of white camellias and sprigs of holly.

Her maid of honor and flower girl wore gowns of deep green taffeta, made with basque waist and full skirt. Miss Leonard carried a Colonial bouquet of holly and red carnations and Malinda, a basket of holly. The bridesmaids' gowns were of Christmas red taffeta and they carried bouquets of holly with gold streamers. All wore wreaths of holly with gold glitter.

Mrs. Wheeler chose a blue brocade sheath dress with bolero and matching blue feather pillbox hat for her daughter's wed-

Antitrust Laws May Help Get At Top Racketeers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials said Tuesday the department is considering use of the antitrust laws as another weapon in Atty. Gen. Rogers' announced plan to get at the nation's top racketeers.

These officials said such laws might be brought into play most appropriately in relation to labor racketeering if it could be shown that a labor racket involved some restraint on trade.

It was explained that the department's antitrust division is constantly engaged in looking into complaints of trade restraints from the standpoint of economic impact, and this type of investigation could be broadened to include racketeering which adversely affects interstate commerce.

The evidence in such cases would be turned over to justice's criminal division, headed by Asst. Atty. Gen. Malcolm Anderson, to be considered in the coordinated program against hoodlum activity.

Rogers early this year named Anderson as director of a long-range plan for combatting organized crime and racketeering. That program involves coordinated action on all information in these fields gathered by the FBI, the Treasury's diverse investigative agencies and the immigration service.

How To Stay Cool Inside Space Ship Big Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — How to stay cool inside a space ship is a problem when the outside temperature is 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

The problem will have to be solved before space pilots can safely return to earth, an Air Force scientist reported Tuesday.

An oven for experiments with humans at the Aero Medical Laboratory of Wright Air Development Center at Dayton, Ohio, is helping find ways of keeping cool.

When a space ship re-enters the earth's atmosphere at high speed, the heat generated by friction with the air can be sizzling—2,000 degrees or higher on the surface of the space ship, Dr. Paul Webb reported.

The space ship would be heavily insulated and its walls would be water cooled. But what happens if one of these protective measures fails?

Webb said the inside walls might heat up by as much as 100 degrees a minute. The air inside the space ship would heat up somewhat slower.

The oven used for the experiment measures four cubic feet. Its light metal walls were heated from the outside by radiant heat lamps.

A man was seated in the oven first unclothed, then dressed lightly, and finally dressed in heavy arctic flight gear.

Without clothes the heat was unbearable at 400 degrees. The lightly clothed man stood the temperature until it reached 450 degrees. The heavily dressed man scarcely felt the heat until 500 degrees was reached.

The heat was not carried beyond this range for fear of setting the clothing on fire.

A mouse can live as long as five years.

European Red Bosses' Trips To Peiping Linked To Party Power Struggle

By NATE POLOWETZKY

TOKYO (AP) — The upcoming visit to Red China of East Germany's Premier Otto Grotewohl is the latest in a series of pilgrimages to Peiping by East European Communist bigwigs since the Hungarian uprising in the fall of 1956.

Some observers in Tokyo are inclined to view the trips as part of a still-undecided battle between Peiping and Moscow for the ideological leadership of the Communist world.

They admit, however, the trips may not have any more significance than one Red boss getting personally acquainted with his counterpart in Asia and that in Grotewohl's case it may be strictly for prestige purpose.

In addition, it is unlikely any of the visits were taken without Kremlin approval.

But the observers point out these developments:

The Budapest uprising shook the Communist world. There were unmistakeable signs of panic in the Red leadership in Europe, including the Kremlin.

At that moment Red China stepped in. Premier Chou En-lai made a hurry up trip in January 1957 to the Soviet Union, restive Poland and Hungary — after canceling part of a Southeast Asia tour — and laid down the line of Communist solidarity. He pulled the Red hierarchy together.

While Chou was in those three countries, another Red Chinese leader, Politburo member P'eng Chen, mayor of Peiping, a little-known but highly important member of the Peiping lineup, was touring the other satellite nations that Chou didn't visit.

He also was urging the European Reds to calm down and stick together.

Their visits were the first direct intervention by the Peiping regime in the affairs of the European Communist world, the particular province of the Soviet Union.

Since then numerous European Red bosses and Asian chiefs have traveled the long road to Peiping. The most recent was Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev who visited from July 31 to Aug. 3.

Khrushchev's visit was followed by the Red Chinese attack on the Nationalist offshore islands and by his retreat from a demand for a summit meeting in the U.N.

More and more in recent years Mao Tze-tung, Red Chinese boss, has acted as if he inherited the mantle of Communist ideological chieftain from the late Soviet dictator Josef Stalin.

It was Peiping — not Moscow — that led the fight against Communist revisionism, or independent, unorthodox communism. Mao's system of organizing his people into communes has presented the Communist world with a new ideological challenge, although he may have overreached himself on this issue. The Kremlin it is reported, is irked with the commune idea.

Despite his announced intention to step down as Red Chinese president, Mao is still boss of the Communist party and as such must still be regarded as the No. 1 man.

He may still be trying to impress the European Reds that Peiping—not Moscow—is the center of the Communist world.

"LOST" VENUS DISPLAYED

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI)—The recently discovered statue of a "Venus" some experts attribute to Michelangelo will go on exhibition at the Palazzo Pitti Gallery early next month, it was announced Tuesday. The statute was found in an ususued hall in the Palazzo Pitti several months ago. Some experts said it might have been started by Michelangelo as a young man and later completed by one of his pupils. Others believed it was the work of a 16th Century sculptor strongly influenced by Michelangelo.

POPE SENDS THANKS

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Pope John XXIII sent his special blessings to President Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese people in a letter received here Tuesday. The Pontiff's note thanked the Nationalist Chinese leader, a Protestant, for sending Foreign Minister S. K. Huang as special envoy to the papal coronation at the Vatican.

On an average holiday week end, motorists throw some 100 thousand tons of trash along America's highways.

1958 Road Projects Cost $10,480,295

The State Roads Commission completed or had under construction $10,480,295 in road and bridge projects in Allegany and Garrett counties during 1958.

The work covered over 32 miles of highways, according to G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the SRC.

Completed during the past 12 months were the following contracts:

East slope of Martins Mountain, 2.589 miles, $1,214,208, Bero Construction Company.

Route 220, south from Rawlings towards McCoole, 4.295 miles, $706,779, S. T. Brotemarkle and Son.

Route 36 from Route 40 to Corriganville, 3.193 miles, $720,377, Cumberland Contracting Company.

West slope of Polish Mountain, 1.945 miles, $1,594,280, Central Pennsylvania Quarry, Stripping and Construction Company.

Route 135, from Bloomington up Backbone Mountain, 2.56 miles, $634,459, Cumberland Contracting.

Route 135, Deer Park to Mountain Lake Park, 3.371 miles, $645,423, George F. Hazelwood Company.

Started this year and still under construction were:

Bridge across Evitts Creek on the Industrial Boulevard, three-span, pre-stressed concrete (first in area), $370,478, George Construction Company.

Bridge across the B&O Railroad and Little Youghiogheny, Route 219, four-span steel beam, $157,310, David Goldberg and Sons, Uniontown.

South end of the Industrial Boulevard, 2.089 miles, $779,306, Cumberland Contracting.

Route 40, from Route 36 to Long, .982 mile; $363,810, Brotemarkle.

Route 51 from entrance of Pittsburgh Plate Glass plant to Spring Gap, 2.37 miles, $349,768, Cumberland Contracting.

West slope of Polish Mountain to east slope of Martins Mountain, Route 40 bypassing Flintstone, 2.353 miles.

Route 219, Gortner to Oakland, and Route 135 from 5.789 miles, $1,257,510, Hazelwood.

Route 135, top of Backbone Mountain, 2.561 miles, $610,809, Burkholder and Burkholder, Winchester.

The Equipment and Supply company of Pittsburgh completed core drilling on the west extension of the Cumberland Thruway at a cost of $3,950.

Completed construction accounted for an expenditure of $5,519,476 and that being built amounts to $4,960,819.

Bids have been opened by the SRC but no contract has been awarded for relocation of Route 36 from Corriganville to Barrelville.

LaVale Road Bids Sought

The Maryland State Roads Commission has advertised for 15 new road projects throughout the state, including one for U. S. Route 40 through LaVale from Long to Winchester Road.

G. Bates Chaires, district SRC engineer, said the project when completed will provide a new highway through the LaVale region from the intersection of Mt. Savage Road to the site of the old Six Mile House.

Chaires pointed out that the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company is currently engaged in improving a .98-mile section of Route 40 from the Mt. Savage Road to Long, and the new project which has been advertised, will carry the improved highway through LaVale proper to the Winchester Road intersection.

The estimated cost of the 15 new projects has been placed at nine million dollars, SRC officials said, adding that the projects will include construction in 13 counties. The bids for the projects will be opened on different dates.

Robert O. Bonnell, SRC chairman, said the estimated cost involves more money than the commission has ever let in any day for state road projects.

Doctors Predict Important Medical Advances In 1959

What's ahead for medical science in the new year?

Eight doctors predicted yesterday that there may be important break-throughs in treatment of arthritis, cancer, heart diseases, diabetes, and diseases of the aged during 1959.

Other advances are foreseen in the field of mental health and in tissue transplants.

The eight doctors, all members of the Scientific Assembly of the American Medical Association, foresee a number of achievements in laboratories, hospitals, and medical research centers throughout the country.

They made their predictions in a year-end survey of Assembly members, who oversee all scientific activities of the AMA.

Here are the physicians' predictions for coming year and for the long-term future, in their own words:

Dr. Stanley P. Reimann, Philadelphia, chairman of the Assembly:

"Tomorrow is being born today in medical research laboratories. We have no crystal ball and it may be folly to prophesy what will be discovered, but much progress is evidenced everywhere. Better substances will be found for the treatment of cancer. Likewise, there will be better drug control of arthritis, and better substances for oral administration in diabetes. As ever, more accurate instruments are being given to us by our friends in mathematics, physics, engineering, and in many other fields, thereby presenting many new facets of investigation.

"The ideal of the doctor is that no one should die of disease but should live his allotted life span and then quickly fall apart like the famous one-horse shay. We are far from this ideal, but it is a goal we are all striving for."

Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, Baylor University, College of Medicine, Houston, Texas:

"One of the most exciting developments looming on the horizons of medical science lies in the field of tissue transplantation. Highly significant studies now being made shed new light on the old problem of why the body throws off tissue transplanted from one to another member of the same species. There are reasons to believe that methods will be developed to alter this response so that tolerance to the transplanted tissue will occur.

"A 'break-through' in this area of investigation would provide a tremendous impact on medicine since technical surgical methods are now available for the performance of organ transplantation. More research in this field holds high promise for effective treatment of many diseases now considered hopeless.

Dr. Walter Scott, Los Angeles:

"Man can look forward with eager anticipation to continuing progress in the medical sciences, but the unfolding of each new step will likely be evolutionary, rather than revolutionary. Research is currently knocking at the door which will soon open and lead to worldwide control of viral diseases.

"Degenerative processes, particularly arteriosclerosis, together with the ever-increasing turmoil in man's emotional life, will be conquered more slowly and along lines not presently known. However, I do not expect that our descendants, a thousand generations hence, will ever see eradication of all congenital deformities or all allergies."

Dr. Leonard W. Larson, Bismarck, N. D.:

"The future looks bright for those who are destined to suffer from such present-day killers as cancer, heart disease, and arteriosclerosis. In the near future science also will open new doors to help those suffering from mental illness.

"Medical research will point more and more to successful cures for some forms of cancer but more important presently is the development of newer tests that will enable practicing physicians to diagnose cancer earlier and more easily than is possible today. Laboratories will come up, too, with better tests to reveal factors which predispose or cause hardening of the arteries.

"Recent studies showing that some forms of mental illness are due to abnormal chemical changes in the brain will speed the day when mental disease will be better understood. Better understanding, of course, will lead to methods and techniques for prevention and cure."

Dr. Samuel P. Newman, Denver, Colo.:

"The great infectious killers of man — typhoid fever, smallpox, polio, diptheria, and the tropical diseases — though not conquered, are effectively controlled by vaccination, inoculation, antibiotics, and public health measures. Science has passed this milestone. But cancer, neither conquered nor effectively controlled as yet, can be seen hazily as our next victim on the horizon.

"Yet we must remember that as we pass one medical milestone after another, man is being led through a longer path of life into old age. With it, he is plagued with the degenerative diseases of the joints, vascular system, and brain, consigning him to disability, pain, and dependency. Thus, we can say medical science is forever awakening new frontiers to conquer. Piece by piece all of these problems will be solved and the knowledge passed on to everyone."

Dr. J. Arnold Bargen, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.:

"More precise information about the nature of the cancer cell will soon be available . . . a bright chapter in medical science of the future. Intensive studies are now being made of these cells from almost every part of the body in their living and growing states.

"The relation of inflammation to tissue repair and the development of the cancer cell offers a most fruitful field of investigation in the immediate future. And information obtained from the study of secretions of body cavities has opened up and broadened considerably our future knowledge about cancer.

"Tremendous forward strides in our studies of the small intestine will soon yield a veritable storehouse of knowledge about human nutrition and absorption."

Dr. Carl A. Lincke, Carrollton, Ohio:

"The New Year holds great hope for the older citizen. Many of today's research programs, now nearing completion, will shed new and important light on the aging processes of man. Recent studies have added greatly to our knowledge of hardening of the arteries and glandular functions of older people. These achievements, with more to come in 1959, are not only important physically, but they will help, too, to ease the economic burdens of our senior citizens."

Dr. Alphonse McMahon, St. Louis:

"Medical science has been advancing with rapid strides. The numerous discoveries in the field of medicine and in the allied sciences of physics, chemistry and biology, together with the application of these discoveries within the past decade, have resulted in more accurate diagnosis and more effective treatment of diseases.

"Atomic medicine has been of great assistance to the medical profession and offers many possibilities for the future. The field of antibiotics is being constantly explored and expanded.

"The effort to solve the problem of the disease processes affecting the blood vessels to vital organs continues on a broad scale. The narrowing and subsequent closure of these vessels is responsible for disability and death in a great number of human beings. In the solution of this problem lies the hope of the human race for a healthy and perhaps symptomless aging."

Perry Smith Residence Wins Yule Light Event

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith at 519 Washington Street has been declared the winner of the Christmas home lighting contest sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce.

Charles Holsinger, chairman of the contest committee, said the judges expressed disappointment over the small number who entered the competition, pointing out that a large number of homes which were attractively decorated with lights had not been entered.

The judges also said only a few homes showed originality or artistic ability in Christmas lighting displays, Holsinger stated.

The second place winner was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Brown, 726 LaVale Terrace, while the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCagh, Detroit Drive, placed third.

The first place prize is a $25 savings account at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, and the lighting display will also be entered in a national contest. The second place award is $15 in cash, donated by the Potomac Edison Company, while an electric hand mixer, donated by the Sterling Electric Company, goes to the third place winner.

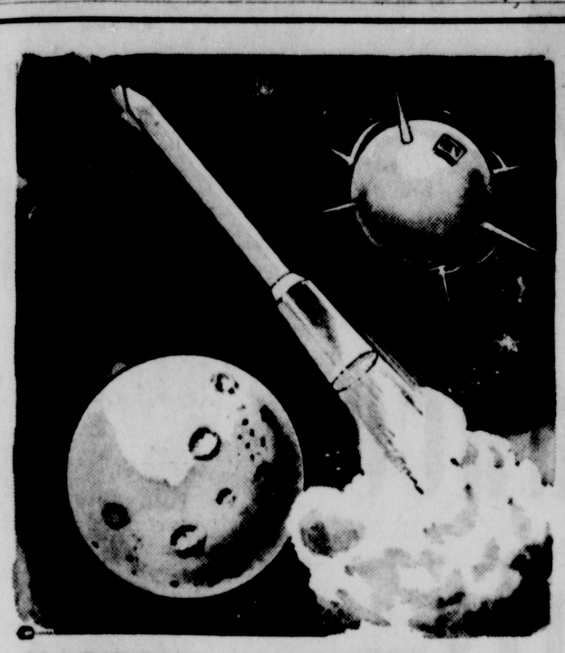

Judges were Mrs. Lloyd Buchanan, Theodore P. Foote, Miss Jane Ebert, Robert J. Welsh, Mrs. T. Donald Shires and William R. Welsh.

DEATHS AND FUNERAL NOTICES

Former Area Man Victim Of Blast

A 29-year-old former Tucker County father of five died Tuesday in Canton, Ohio, as the result of burns received in a gasoline explosion the day before.

Monroe Sherman of Waynesburg, Ohio, son of Mrs. Amanda Sherman, near Parsons, was the second person to lose his life in the blast. Harry Anderson, 18, Canton, was killed instantly.

Still in critical condition at Mercy Hospital there is Paul W. Jefferson Jr. 17, of Canton. All were employed by the M&R Auto Sales Company.

Sherman and Anderson were welding a gas tank to a car when the explosion occurred. Jefferson had just entered a concrete building, and apparently was burned while aiding the other two men.

Reports said the two dead men had been pouring gasoline into an open bucket.

Funeral services for Sherman are scheduled Saturday in Parsons.

JAMES W. PARSONS

PARSONS—James W. Parsons, 86, died Tuesday in a Clarksburg veterans hospital following an illness of two weeks. He was born near here, a son of the late Jobe and Eunice Jane (Long) Parsons.

Mr. Parsons was one of three Spanish-American War veterans residing in Parsons. The others are J. G. Parsons, a cousin, and Fred Combs.

He was mayor of Parsons four different times and a woodsman and farmer all his life. He had been retired from the West Virginia State Road Commission for about ten years and was a member of the Presbyterian Church of Parsons. He was the last surviving member of his immediate family.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Nan (Long) Parsons; a son, Harold W. Parsons, and a grandson, all of Parsons.

The body is at the Greenlief Funeral Home here, with services to be conducted Friday at 2 p. m., at the Greenlief Funeral Home Chapel. Rev. John Finley, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Parsons, will officiate with interment in the Parsons City Cemetery.

Friends will be received at the funeral home after 1 p.m. today.

JOSEPH B. BOYD

Joseph Bruce Boyd, 64, of 610 North Mechanic Street, died yesterday afternoon at Memorial Hospital where he had been a patient one month.

Mr. Boyd was born at Hancock, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boyd.

He was a retired sign painter for the Celanese Corporation and also worked as an artist. Mr. Boyd was a veteran of World War I and was a member of Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, and Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Surviving are his widow, Cecil J. (Hager) Boyd; a son, James Boyd, this city; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Jane Perdew, city; a sister, Miss Nellie G. Boyd, city, and a half-brother, Ralph Boyd, Spring Gap.

The body is at the Scarpelli Funeral Home where the family will receive friends from 2 to 4 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

Services will be conducted Saturday at 10 a. m. at Holy Cross Episcopal Church by Rev. William J. Cox, vicar. Burial will be in Greenmont Cemetery.

MRS. FRED A. SMITH

KEYSER—Mrs. Phyllis Elizabeth Smith, 47, wife of Fred A. Smith, Cincinnati, both former residents, died yesterday at Christ Hospital there. Mrs. Smith, who has lived in Cincinnati the past five years, had been in ill health for the past year.

She was born here, a daughter of Mrs. Grace (Ault) Culliton, Cincinnati, and the late Alvin I. Rogers. Mrs. Smith was a member of Evangelical United Brethren Church of Keyser.

Also surviving, in addition to her husband and mother, are a daughter, Mrs. Jean Luempert, also of Cincinnati; a sister, Mrs. Virginia Metz, Keyser, two brothers, Richard A. Rogers, Huntington, and John I. Rogers, also of this place, and a grandson.

Arrangements are incomplete pending arrival of the body at the Rogers Funeral Home here.

JAMES A. SHAY

FAIRMONT—James A. Shay, 61, fell from the roof of a three-story building here Tuesday and died 20 minutes after being taken to Fairmont Emergency Hospital by city firemen. Dr. Charles H. Koon, county coroner, who investigated, said death was accidental and caused by a severe skull fracture.

Shay, who had reported to work at Shumaker's Market where he was a meat cutter, complained of being ill and had gone back to his room where he boarded. He apparently had gone to the roof of the building for fresh air when he may have suffered an attack of dizziness and fallen.

Among the survivors is a sister, Mrs. Mildred Ashcraft, Oakland.

PATRICK F. PFEIFER

KEYSER, W. Va. — Patrick Frederick Pfeifer, 57, died yesterday at his home, 105 East Piedmont Street, after a long illness.

An Expression Of The Urge To Build

That the construction industry is now the kingpin of prosperity and was the major factor in cushioning the effects of the recent recession is evident in the national statistics.

After the war, which had channelled most energies into the national effort, there was a quick climb to $12 billion of construction in 1946. Thereafter the rise was steady to $28.5 billion in 1950. In the eight years since then it has risen 71 per cent.

Construction in 1958 was an estimated $48.8 billion—the record year of all time. Industry expectations are that it will climb to $52.3 billion this year, crossing the $50 billion mark for the first time.

The pattern shifts as to type of construction. After the war the accent was on housing to satisfy a pent-up demand caused by obsolescence and the formation of new families. Housing construction continues at a high rate but is off from the peak.

Industrial production has been a steady factor through the post-war years but now the shift is to public projects. Beginning at $2.4 billion in 1946, public construction reached $15 billion in 1958 and is expected to total $17 billion this year. Highways are the largest single item.

These figures must be scaled down considerably for cost inflation. But that does not disguise the fact that the urge to build has become America's greatest stimulant.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Debutantes

Each year, during the Christmas holidays, when girls come home from college, here in New York, there is a wild series of balls, cocktail parties and similar social activities for the debutantes.

In the older days, these were very solemn, very social presentation balls, at which girls of marriageable age were presented to the dowagers, and then the marriageable young men were present and it was often hoped or arranged that a marriage might result. Of course, today the young ladies are likely to have their beaux on hand and there is always a special one who might last for a while or might be the accepted spouse, with or without parental knowledge and consent.

In such instances, and they are quite usual these days, the debutante parties are a waste of time and money because their ultimate objective had already been achieved.

It is an old tradition for parents to want to marry off their daughters, to see them well-established, as it used to be said. But these days when girls go away to college the same as the boys do and are on their own, unchaperoned either by mothers or duennas, and when they can earn as much or more than boys do and they enter all the professions, it is just a little silly to have these presentations, in long white dresses, with only a train and a veil required to make it the real thing. For the young ones, these balls have lost their meaning.

But there is another side to all this. Marriage is perhaps the oldest and the most solemn institution among the human race. Any traditions which strengthen the institution of marriage are beneficial socially. On the other hand, in our Western civilization divorce has become so usual that one sometimes why certain persons, those who have four or six or even more spouses apiece, marry at all. Whenever I hear a young girl say, when her choice is criticized by her elders, that it is always possible to get a divorce, I know that her marriage is starting badly.

Such people always remain strangers to each other. They have mistaken the biological urge for procreation with their own desire for fun and they have approached marriage without consciousness that it concerns principally a family—a family that is to be held together by love and sacrifice.

In the old days, there was an aristocracy and the social excuse for it was that it set the manners of the period and it maintained a moral society and he who did not restrain himself was regarded as a cad. Those who failed to live up to the manners and morals of the aristocracy were regarded as boors and were excluded from decent company. In the United States, we never had a landed aristocracy although we did have an hereditary one. Money was not always the criterion; it was often ancestry, in the sense that the family had been long on the American continent or had served in the clergy, in government, or in the universities.

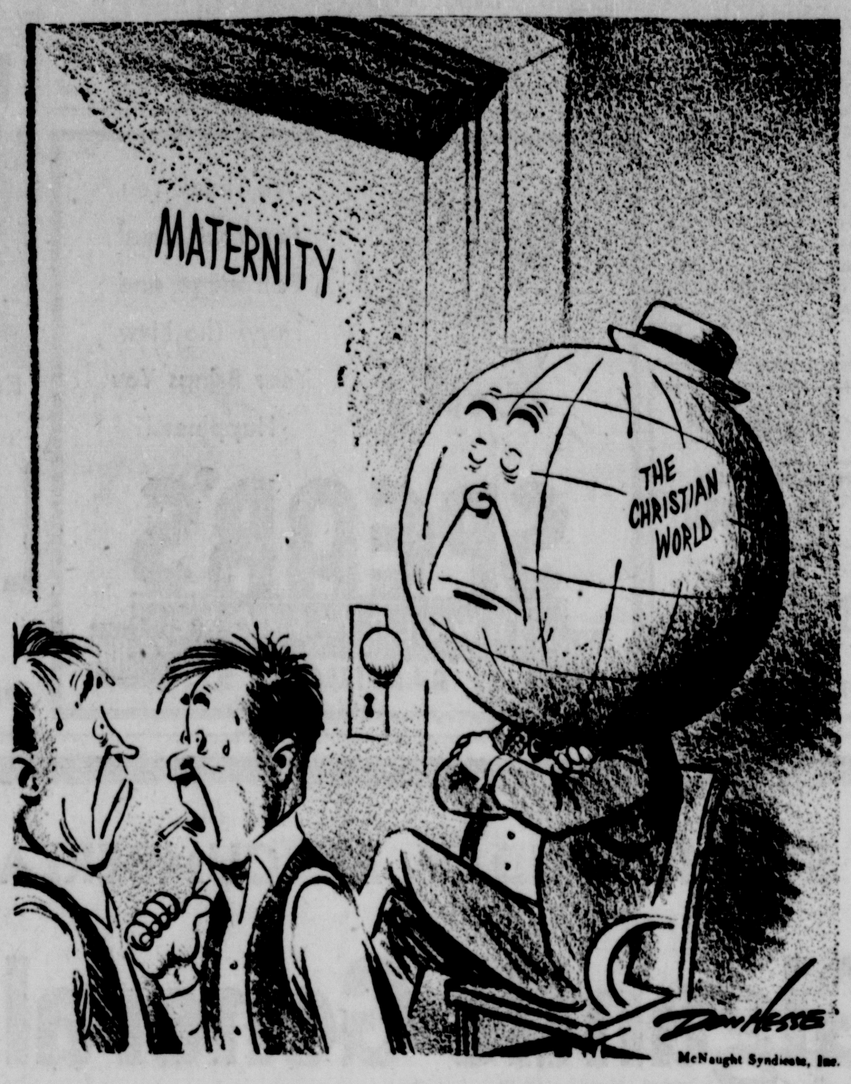

Money invaded this older element in the 1880s and 1890s and it was money earned in devious ways, often during the Civil War years. The finer families of the South had been impoverished by war and Boston and Philadelphia families were pleased to have the new wealth marry into them. Some of the most vulgar persons in American life appeared in what was called society in those days and their children and grandchildren have, on the whole, been no improvement on their forebears. In fact, they represent the deterioration.

For while the earlier crowd imitated the manners of those who admitted them and had the substantial morals of self-made men, the present generation of rich vulgarians has nothing but money. They are not educated. They build nothing. They are not good businessmen. They are not even good first-rate connivers.

They only know how to spend their inherited income, how to exchange wives, how to shift about from home to home, leaving their children to the casual care of hirelings, without moral teachings, without religion, without greater purpose in life than to be recognized by a headwaiter. These are the debris of a great nation and they have vulgarized this institution of presentation. When a girl of 18 wears mink, what will satisfy her at 35?

Goldfine Was Railroaded On A Technicality

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—There's something pathetic and tragic about the raw deal Bernard Goldfine is getting. If he were a Communist or Communist sympathizer, he would have plenty of defenders, including various "civil liberty" organizations which would be crying out loudly that here is a man being denied his Constitutional rights.

This correspondent has never met Mr. Goldfine nor had any relations with him or his businesses, but feels that he is entitled to a fair deal in the courts. It is cruel to "lynch" him and fasten upon him a stigma for life when he has not been given a trial by a jury as guaranteed him by the Constitution. Nor has he been tried in an atmosphere free from prejudice or prejudgment, as the rules of court procedure require.

Federal Judge Wyzanski, in effect, conceded this in open court last week when, in pronouncing sentence, he said:

"I am not unmindful that when persons of political consequence get into difficulty the whole community holds a sadistic spirit."

The judge also said he wouldn't make the sentence as long as one year, because this would require Presidential action to get a pardon and could drag the matter further into the realm of politics.

Not so long ago Dennis Delaney, U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue at Boston, was convicted on a criminal charge, and the U. S. Court of Appeals there set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial at a later date because a Congressional investigation on the same subject was going on at the time. This was ruled as an influence that would make it difficult for the defendant to get a fair trial.

What are the real issues in the Goldfine case? The press has already reported that he has been sentenced to jail, but what has not been reported is the legal background which makes it doubtful whether such a sentence will ever be upheld in the higher courts. Mr. Goldfine got into legal trouble in three different situations, as follows:

First, the New England textile manufacturer refused to answer certain questions asked by a Congressional committee. Four eminent lawyers advised him these were irrelevant questions and that the committee had no Constitutional right to compel answers. Also, the Congressional committee asked the questions at the same time that minority stock holders in the company under inquiry had filed suit. The federal judge had under advisement at that time whether to approve or disapprove the settlement offered by Mr. Goldfine. It was finally approved, but the basic Constitutional question is whether a Congressional committee may interfere in a matter that is being coincidentally tried in the courts. This has often been held to be an encroachment on the judicial process.

Second, the Securities and Exchange Commission ordered certain data to be filed immediately by Mr. Goldfine, and he complied two weeks after the order was issued. For a technical delay, he was made the subject of a court suit. It was amicably settled by his payment of the expenses involved in the proceedings. Except for the political atmosphere prevailing, this kind of technicality would probably have been ignored. It has been disregarded in many instances where other companies are concerned.

Third, Mr. Goldfine was ordered by the Internal Revenue Service to deliver his accounts for several years back in five of his companies. He delivered the papers and then asked for six months in which to work over those same papers in order to prepare his tax returns. To delay payment on income tax returns is not in itself a crime, but does involve a fine and accumulated interest if the delay cannot be justified. Mr. Goldfine was given 60 days by the court to work on his papers. He then produced nearly a ton of papers, but withheld seven books needed for current operations. The judge ordered him to surrender them to the Internal Revenue Service. Instead, Mr. Goldfine's lawyers produced them in court and argued that they had a right to retain the originals while submitting photographic copies to the Internal Revenue Service. The judge disagreed and, instead of imposing a fine as is customary in such cases, sentenced Mr. Goldfine to jail. The latter had complied for all practical purposes with the court order, but not at the exact moment or in the technical form demanded by the judge. Yet on this narrow ground a prominent business man is being branded throughout the country as a criminal and given a jail sentence.

Incidentally, there has been some criticism expressed by members of the bar in Boston because the judge who sat in the case had a personal controversy with Mr. Goldfine earlier this year which was widely publicized and because judges under such circumstances are expected to disqualify themselves.

This points up the importance of jury trials in criminal contempt cases. The Constitution says that "in all criminal prosecutions" a citizen is entitled to a trial by "an impartial jury." No exceptions are mentioned. Otherwise, the judge in criminal contempt cases becomes the accuser as well as the prosecutor and the "jury."

Red Square in Moscow did not get its name from any emblem of a political party. Since the Middle Ages, the square has been known by this name, which is a form of a Russian word which means both "red" and "beautiful."

Approximately one out of every three persons in the United States lives in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Peat is a product of decayed vegetation found in bogs in many parts of the world.

Families with children tend to have better diets than those without children. This is so even though their average income is no higher and they have more persons to feed.

By requiring its truck drivers to make ten-minute coffee stops every two hours, the U. S. Army reduced its accident rate by nearly 40 per cent.

New Year's Resolutions About Health Habits

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Resolve this year to pay more attention to those telltale sypmtoms that may indicate a serious disease. Consult your physician immediately if you feel pain or a sense of pressure beneath the breastbone. Be doubly suspicious if you are over 50, or if the bouts follow a period of stress, unusual fatigue, or exertion. You may have angina pectoris.

Glaucoma is the most common cause of blindness. It can be treated successfully when detected before the eyes are damaged beyond repair. In this condition, it is difficult to adjust vision to changes of illumination or to see well even after frequent changes of glasses. Vision becomes blurred or foggy, more so when rainbow colored rings are noted around lights at night.

An annual chest X-ray is an excellent investment. It may help detect tuberculosis or lung cancer months before the development of cough, blood-streaked sputum, or chest pain. The earlier these diseases are uncovered, the less complicated the treatment and the better the outlook.

Indigestion is a vague symptom but it often acts as the initial complaint among victims of heart trouble, peptic ulcer, gall bladder disorders, or stomach cancer. All of us are entitled to a bout or two of gastric distress but we should seek medical attention when it persists or recurs.

Make aresolution to have the larynx examined should hoarseness last more than three weeks. It might be a cold but it could be cancer. Changes in bowel habits after midlife call for X-ray of the intestine. Bleeding from a body opening or a sore or ulcer that fails to heal may be a sign of cancer. Our senior citizens with poor circulation may be able to prevent gangrene by keeping their extremities clean and avoiding injury, strong antiseptics, and hot water.

Keep the mind strong through positive thinking and good mental hygiene. Avoid anger, jealousy and hate. Pity is the only emotion that does not raise the blood pressure or produce heart trouble.

HEART RACING

M. J. writes: Can a galloping heart be slowed down?

REPLY

The remedy for a racing heart depends upon the cause, which varies from anxiety to heart failure. On the other hand, the term gallop rhythm is used by physicians to describe the rhythm of the heart when a third heart sound is present. Medicines are available to slow the rate when it is too rapid.

HOUSEMAID'S KNEE

E. L. writes: How can you tell when you have water on the knee?

REPLY

The majority of swollen knees contain fluid which may be water, blood, or purulent material. When there is doubt, a small amount of fluid can be withdrawn and sent to the laboratory.

HEATING PAD AT NIGHT

Mrs. F. D. writes: Is it harmful to keep a heating pad on my back all night? I suffer from arthritis at the base of my spine and the only relief I get is to use the pad.

REPLY

No, provided it does not burn you.

BLOCKED ENTRANCE

L. B. writes: What causes obstruction at the entrance to the stomach?

REPLY

Spasm of the pyloric valve that guards the entrance to the stomach or a tumor in the lower part of the gullet or the upper stomach.

HALOS AROUND LIGHTS

T. P. writes: I consulted an eye specialist because I was seeing halos around street lights. He said this phenomenon does not necessarily indicate glaucoma. Please comment.

REPLY

This is true but a test for glaucoma is indicated when this symptom occurs. I assume the eye specialist you consulted is a physician capable of doing adequate tests.

OILY DANDRUFF

D. F. writes: Is seborrheic dandruff due to infection?

REPLY

This is a moot question. In all probability the cause is similar to that of acne. In many instances, greasy dandruff co-exists with pimples and blackheads of the face. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on care of the hair and scalp. It has something to say about dandruff.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

The Army decided to put a live mouse in the nozzle of a new rocket it was testing and borrowed one from the Harv. laboratory. The rocket was into orbit without a hitch for three months whirled dizzily around the globe in outer space. Then it returned to earth, and, lo and behold, the mouse marched out in the very pink of condition!

Returned to the Harvard laboratory, this mouse became, of course, the hero of the hour. "What's it like," demanded a spokesman for the stay-at-homes, "to go spinning so long in outer space?"

"I'll tell you one thing, fellows," admitted the hero-mouse nonchalantly. "It's better than this rat race!"

Proud Alaskans Busy Preparing For Formal Entry Into Union

By Drew Pearson

FAIRBANKS, Alaska—The latest Texas story is Billy Graham's definition of claustrophobia: "An Alaskan in Texas."

It's a story that delights Alaskans. For, as the biggest state prepares officially and formally to become a state in 1959, it is bursting with pride and preening its feathers.

When Mrs. Helen Fisher, Democratic committeewoman from Alaska, went to Washington for the last committee meeting she packed four suitcases. Three contained clothes to tide her through the customary sessions in the smoke-filled rooms. The fourth contained smoked salmon and other fishy edibles from Alaska. The airline proceeded to lose the first three suitcases containing clothes. But committeewoman Fisher was happy. She had the suitcase containing Alaskan fish.

Not only is Alaska proud, but like many youngsters it has a chip on its shoulder. It bristles at criticism like a Kodiak bear surprised in a berry patch. When word was published in Alaskan newspapers that I was about to report on a radio program that hamburgers in Alaska cost one dollar, signs appeared in Fairbanks restaurants "DREW PEARSON NEVER ATE HERE—HAMBURGERS 35 CENTS."

And on a Fairbanks TV program during which I was hauled over the coals for a garbled Associated Press dispatch stating that I had criticized Alaska, the Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce sent me three hamburgers for a dollar with instructions that I choke on them in front of the TV cameras.

Alaskans have fought hard for statehood and they don't even want their hamburgers belittled. They want it made clear that they have an area one-fifth the size of the other 48 states, more timber perhaps than all the other states, gold, copper and precious metals, bigger crops, potatoes and cabbages than any place else in the world.

I might add that they also have some of the most beautiful scenery, atrocious weather, biggest mosquitoes and most energetic people to be found in any of the 49 states.

A Notable "Steal"

A few years ago the Soviet press was talking about the American "steal" of Alaska as if preparing for a drive to get it back. The idea of getting Alaska back couldn't have been very serious, but the description of the $7,000,000 price tag for Alaska as a "steal" was certainly accurate. Alaska was a much bigger steal than even Moscow realized, for neither most Russians nor most Americans know that the $7,000,000 was a concealed payment for the cost of sending the Russian fleet to guard San Francisco and New York during the toughest months of our Civil War.

In 1863, with Confederate raiders getting bolder and the Birtish hoping to split the south off from the north, Abraham Lincoln was afraid Britain and France might formally recognize the south.

So he sent Bayard Taylor with a personal letter to Foreign Minister Gorchakov in St. Petersburg asking for help. It was secretly agreed that in case France and England recognized the south, Russia would ally itself with the north and attack any British fleet that came within hailing distance of the north.

Part of the secret understanding was that the north would pay for the cost of the Russian fleet operation, which was later worked out through the purchase of what was considered worthless Alaska.

Early in the fall of 1863 six Russian warships under Rear Admiral Popov anchored off San Francisco, while another six ships under Rear Admiral Lisovski steamed up the Hudson River. Never was a foreign fleet given such a welcome. The Russians were wined and dined, taken in Niagara Falls, visited Meade's headquarters in Virginia, given a grand ball at the Academy of Music, and when they got drunk were immediately released by New York magistrates. The Army of the Potomac even took a day off, while Mrs. Lincoln set tongues wagging both in the United States and the capitals of Europe by drinking a toast to the Czar.

Russia Helped Solidify U. S.

There was no public explanation as to why the Russian fleets should turn up in American waters, but the chancelleries of Europe understood well. And Admiral Lisovski finally confided to Admiral Farragut that he was under sealed orders to be broken only "in a contingency that has not occurred—namely, if war broke out between the United States and foreign nations".

In San Francisco Admiral Popov was quite frank. He handed a note to Confederate raiders which read: "The undersigned is instructed to inform whom it may concern that the ships of the above-mentioned squadron are bound to assist the authorities of everyplace where friendship is offered them in all measures which may be deemed necessary by the local authorities to repel any attempt against the security of the place."

Since the people of San Francisco were profuse in their friendship for the Russian fleet, the warning to the Confederate raiders was not lost.

If it had not been for this Russian intervention and the subsequent deal to pay for Russian naval expenses by charging an inflated price for Alaska, the United States might conceivably be functioning under two separate governments today.

And what must irk the present rulers of Russia is the fact that Russia not only helped solidify and strenghten the United States, but the piece of territory involved in the deal is now the 49th state and the chief American base aimed at Russia.

The question of defending that new state, however, has been described by President Eisenhower as extremely difficult and will be discussed in another column.

Few Stocks Unsplit

By Leslie Gould

NEW YORK—The ranks of Stock Exchange listed shares that have never split are getting thin.

Since the war close to 600 have split their shares or paid fat stock dividends—which are one and the same thing. Some companies have split their shares or paid big stock dividends more than twice in the last 12 years.

American Telephone was the last of the big holdouts. There is another, but not comparable in size. Superior Oil of California. Pricewise, Superior is the bluest of the "blue chips."

Superior last year sold at an all-time high of $2,000 and currently is only a couple of hundred dollars under that peak. In the dark days of the depression it sold as low as $21.

It will be split some day—if for no other reason than to finance inheritance taxes via a wider public distribution. The Keck family controls it.

Over-the-Counter, Christiana Securities—a du Pont family holding company—is in the $14,000 class. That stock is currently $13,800 bid and $14,300 offered.

Likely near term candidates for splits are some six dozen Stock Exchange listed shares.

Most likely of these are such shares as:

International Business Machines, now just under the $500. The shares were split two for one last year and the company paid a 75 per cent stock dividend in '48 and 25 per cent stock dividends in '54 and '56.

Eastman Kodak now around $145. Eastman split in '47 five for one. It has paid one 5 per cent and two 10 per cent stock dividends in recent years.

Firestone around $130. The stock was split two for one in 1951 and again in 1955.

Goodyear around $120. The stock was split two for one in '54.

Inland Steel above $140. The stock was split three for one in '46.

Lorillard around $80. The last time the stock was split was four for one in 1923.

National Cash Register in the same price bracket. The stock was split three for one in '55 and three 10 per cent stock dividends have been paid since the war.

Reynolds Tobacco "B" close to $90. The stock was last split in '29 two and a half for one.

Rohm & Haas around $500.

Zenith around $190. The company split two for one last March. Prior to that it split two for one in February 1928 and four for one in November that same year.

The split up fever subsided last year and this year. There were 12 this year and 40 last year, compared with 88 on the Stock Exchange in '56—a boom year in the market—and 73 in '55. The previous big split up year was '46 when 74 companies took such action.

Trawler Missing

MALAGA, Spain (UPI) — The Spanish fishing trawler Nuestra Senora del Carmen, with a crew of 28 aboard, has been missing for more than a week, it was reported Wednesday. Shipping circles here said the trawler sailed from Alhucemas on the North African coast Dec. 23. It carried no radio equipment.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

WORCESTER, Mass. — Plucky little Assumption College, flattened by a tornado three years ago, is rising anew here. The big wind demolished in one minute the torturous work of half a century. But men of good will from all walks and creeds are replacing the broken bits and fractured dreams with a spanking new college whose curriculum includes a remarkable undergraduate School of Foreign Affairs, the only one of its kind in all New England.

Assumption, run by the French-founded Assumptionist Order which has played a unique role in our relations with Russia, sees acute need for preparing young men properly to represent the U.S. overseas. If the challenge of Nikita Khrushchev's dominance-through-trade is to be met, this country has need of an army of Americans trained in the languages, economy, customs, prides and prejudices of foreign lands, their market places and chancelleries.

The sun may have set on certain areas of what once was the British empire, but it never again will set on the American diplomat, businessman, developer or serviceman overseas. The U.S. has assumed in perpetuity what once was called "the white man's burden." It is a burden that can't be dropped under any circumstances, for to do so would be to forfeit the world almost instantly to Communism.

It is a young man's game, from the oil fields of Saudi Arabia to a know-how mission to Zanzibar.

"Within 25 years, one college graduate in four will find at least part of his career abroad," declared President Eisenhower's Committee on Education.

More than 2,300 U.S. corporations now have overseas offices. Assumption admittedly can't train the whole army of linguistic experts needed to man them. But a fine regiment will help.

A 37-year-old priest, who looks like a good football end, is head of the foreign service school at Assumption. You've seen his name, probably. It is Georges L. Bissonette, born in Central Falls, R.I., the priest who was tossed out of Russia in 1955 because the State Department would not extend the visitors visa of Exarch Boris of the Russian Orthodox Church in the U.S.

American Assumptionists have been in and out of Russia since F.D.R. and Maxim Litvinov arranged U.S. recognition of the Soviet Union 25 years ago. Why Assumptionists? Well, seems that the Catholic bishop of Moscow at the time, a Frenchman named Pie Neveu, was of that order, so it was felt an American of the same cloth would have the least trouble there. Roosevelt was keen to send a Protestant minister and a rabbi, too, to take care of what he felt would be a thriving American colony inside Russia. Both declined.

The first to go was Father Leopold Braun, who stayed 11 years. There have been three successors, a fourth, big scholarly fellow named Louis Dion, from Worcester, is packing.

"At first we had the use of a church in Moscow," Bissonette told us. "Then in 1950 the Moscow Soviet, the city government, told us it could no longer do business with an individual — such as accept rent and taxes. We'd have to organize the Catholics among the diplomatic corps, and the other Moscow Catholics into a kind of cooperative responsible for upkeep, and other details.

"The upshot of it was that they directed that henceforth our church, St. Louis des Francais, would be staffed by the Archbishop Springovicz of Riga. Quite a man, the old archbishop. The Nazis cut certain muscles and tendons out of his legs to keep him from moving around too much. The Russians have been tough on him, too. But he stays in there pitching with pastoral letters urging the old ones to give home instructions in religion to school kids who now must swear, in effect, to be atheists in order to qualify for higher education.

"We operate out of a little apartment at number 12-24 Sadovaia-Samotechnaia. We get four or five people for daily Mass. Teach catechism to the children of the Catholic diplomats, play volleyball with the Marines at the embassy, and each morning wait for the hot water to reach our ninth floor rear. Bill Hearst, Kingsbury Smith and Frank Conniff came by one day when I was there. Dion will find it pretty quiet. It's a long haul, but if there's anybody who can do it, Louis can."

TO HEAD NUCLEAR TALKS

LONDON (UPI)—David Ormsby-Gore, minister of state for foreign affairs, again will lead the British delegation upon resumption of the nuclear talks in Geneva next week, the Foreign Office said Wednesday.

Today's Calendars Have Long And Varied History

The calendars we put up today have a history dating back to ancient times.

The first calendars were made by the Babylonians and the Egyptians. They were not accurate by modern standards but they served well enough for many centuries.

As time went on, efforts were made to correct the calendars, but the first major reform was made by the Romans.

From 46 B.C. to 1582, time was reckoned by the Julian calendar. Authorized by Julius Caesar, the calendar divided the year into 365 days and added an extra day each four years.

The Venerable Bede, an Anglo-Saxon monk, pointed out in 730 A.D. that every year was running 11 minutes and 14 seconds too long.

In spite of his warning, nothing was done to correct the error, which amounted to a day in 128 years, until Pope Gregory XIII, in 1582, decreed that the error be corrected by designating the day after October 4, 1582 to be October 15.

This caused a bit of trouble with dates. For example, George Washington was born on February 11, 1732 under the Julian calendar, but modern usage lists his birthday as February 22 to conform with the Gregorian calendar.

Great Britain and the American Colonies got around to adopting the new calendar in 1752. It was not adopted by Greece and the Greek Orthodox Church communities until 1923.

With a little imagination—and a lot of stamina—you can ring in the New Year with more than one celebration. In fact, you can keep on celebrating all through the year, just by switching calendars.

The World Book Encyclopedia says most of the Christian world wipes the slate clean January 1.

By trading in the Gregorian calendar for the Julian calendar, you can have another New Year's party on January 14.

Take a few months to recover, and you can join the Iranian celebration on March 21. If that doesn't wear you out, you can turn over a new leaf in autumn, when the Jews welcome the New Year.

If you want to cut down on travel time, you can confine your party-hopping to India. The Hindus are divided into many different religious groups, and each group marks the beginning of the year on a different date.

Aircraft Plant May Be Struck At Martinsburg

Machinists Want Hourly Increase

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP) —Barring an 11th hour settlement, some 160 employes of the Thieblot Aircraft Division of the Vitro Corp. of America will strike here at midnight tonight.

Union officials called the strike after contract negotiations between the firm and the International Assn. of Machinists became deadlocked today.

Wages were the main point of disagreement, according to John Trementozzi of Washington, international representative of the union. He said the original union demand for a 50-cent hourly increase was scaled down to 30 cents today. The average straight time pay now is $2.01 per hour.

Attorney Lacy I. Rice Sr., representing Thieblot, said other matters at issue in addition to wages include company demands for abolishment of the union strike provision in the present contract, elimination of union dues checkoff, changes in sick leave and changes in the regulations on what the union committee and shop stewards may do during working hours.

Thieblot, which built a plant at Martinsburg Municipal Airport here four years ago, does aircraft design, modification and experimental work, chiefly for the government. About 140 other employes, mostly engineers, technicians and clerks, are not involved in the machinists' negotiations.

Although the strike is scheduled for midnight, it's full effect would not be felt until Monday because of the long holiday weekend.

Feaster Sees Encouraging Changes In W.Va. Schools

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) —West Virginia University Education Dean E. K. Feaster Tuesday noted "many encouraging changes" in the state's public school picture in the year since release of his mammoth study that said West Virginia school children receive less than a second-rate education.

Feaster emphasized that "the task of building a first-class educational system in West Virginia is far from completed" and said several major problems remain unsolved.

Feaster listed as the most important problem still facing West Virginia "the difficulty of attracting and holding really competent teachers." He said this can't be done until teachers salaries and fringe benefits are in a position to compete with those of other states.

"Considering the inducements offered to teachers by other states, I am surprised we have been able to hold on to as many competent teachers as we have," he observed.

Among changes noted by Feaster over the past year are a reevaulation of public school curriculum by principals and administrators and "a dramatic statewide increase in the school guidance program."

In addition, counties are showing more intrest in finding more effective ways of teaching, Feaster noted. At least six counties are experimenting with the "Joplin plan" of teaching reading, a system which groups pupils according to their reading abilities.

Children also seem to have developed a "more eager and constructive attitude," Feaster said.

Three Youths Jailed For Robbing Meters

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — A Baltimore boy and two Washington County youths were sentenced to 30 days each in jail Tuesday for robbing parking meters.

Detective Albert Lowry said the trio got only 60 cents because the meters had been emptied the day they were rifled.

The two county boys, Donald E. Lucas, 16, Smithburg, and Ralph E. Hurley, 18, Boonsboro, told police the 17-year-old Baltimorean, James L. Shrout, put them up to it.

The three met in the Baltimore City Jail where each was serving 15 days for shoplifting. When they were released, Shrout accompanied them to Hagerstown and told them they could get money easily by breaking open parking meters. The boys told police Shrout said he had had plenty of experience in Baltimore.

Seven Small Boys Damage Over 300 Parking Meters

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— Seven small boys, ranging in age from 9 to 12, have admitted breaking into some 300 parking meters here since the middle of November, juvenile authorities said Wednesday.

The youngsters were apprehended following an investigation of a tip that four of them were seen breaking meters in downtown Charleston during daylight hours last week.

An officer who arrested them said the boys had $6.50 in their possession when arrested. He said the youths admitted splitting the money among themselves after breaking into each meter and that none had any idea of how much had been taken.

Police Sgt. Arlie Robinson estimated the cost of repairing the damaged meters at $2,000 to $3,000.

Robinson said 413 meters had been broken open during the past month, indicating adults, as well as other juveniles, are involved in the meter raids.

Authorities said the youth admitted starting the recent fire which destroyed a home at nearby Toms Creek. The high school blazes caused only minor damage.

W.Va. Coal And Lumber Business Shows Decline

State's Economic Difficulty Puts Damper On New Year Celebrations

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The new year was welcomed in early today by West Virginians with a good deal less enthusiasm than that which greeted 1958.

The state's economic condition is much worse than it was a year ago, when it also was sagging. Thousands more persons are out of work and barely skimping along on free food handouts.

A record number of persons is receiving unemployment benefits and untold others have exhausted their eligibility for such doles.

There were new year's forecasts for better things in 1959 but there obviously was no short - cut cure for the depressed conditions. The Legislature, convening Jan. 14, will be asked to try and help find some kind of antidote.

There were many new year's parties which lasted well into the early hours of this morning but the celebrations were not as numerous as before. The weather was generally as unfavorable as the economic conditions—raw and wet.

State Police urged travelers during the holiday period, running from Wednesday at 6 p.m. to midnight Sunday, to take care. There were 10 traffic fatalities during a similar Christmas weekend period.

Only Few Areas Showing Limited Improvement

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Twelve of 20 categories of business, trade and production gauged by the West Virginia Chamber of Commerce showed declines in November from the month before. Twelve divisions also were below November, 1957.

A report released Wednesday showed increases over October in natural gas production, electric power output, retail sales, post office receipts, gross sales and average weekly earnings of manufacturing and coal mine employes.

Retail sales and gross sales tax collections were down from November, 1957, but natural gas, lumber and electric power production, the value of building permits, post office receipts, cash farm income and average weekly earnings of manufacturing and coal mine employes were up over November, 1957.

Only five segments of business in West Virginia showed increased activity during the first 11 months of 1958 compared with the same period last year, the chamber said. They were natural gas production, value of construction contracts awarded, post office receipts, farm income and average weekly wages of manufacturing employes.

The other 15 segments normally studied by the chamber registered declines between the 11 - month periods with coal production showing a sharp 25.7 per cent drop and employment a decline of 7 per cent.

Other declines reported between the 11-month periods includes lumber production 22.8 per cent, average earning of coal miners 10.3 per cent, value of manufactured products 9.5 per cent, retail sales 6 per cent, building permits 11.2 per cent, and gross, consumers and gasoline tax collections down an average of 4.6 per cent.

Police Object To Meter Maids

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—Parkersburg policemen claim certain of the "fairer sex" aren't being fair.

The city has employed women "meter maids" to hand out tickets for parking violations. Eight officers have filed a suit aimed at forcing the city to remove the women from doing "police duties."

The officers pointed out that the women have not taken police civil service tests, nor are they official members of the police department.

Edward Daskal Named Citizen Of Year By Service Organizations At Keyser

KEYSER — Edward Daskal, operator of the "Store On Wheels," was chosen Keyser's "Citizen of the Year" at a Kiwanis Club meeting Tuesday in the dining room of First Methodist Church.

Daskal received a plaque from Mayor Richard E. Romig, last year's winner of the annual award.

Other previous titleholders are former Mayor John C. Freeland, Paul J. Davis, president of the National Bank of Keyser, and David G. Nuzum, faculty member at Potomac State College.

Daskal was chosen primarily on the basis of his contribution to community service outside the duties of his profession. He is active in civic affairs.

The "Citizen of the Year" program is also sponsored by the Rotary and Lions clubs and Soroptimists.

Colder Weather Is Forecast

WEST VIRGINIA — Temperatures will average 3 to 5 degrees above normal high-low range of 37-22 in the northern part of the state and 47-27 in southern portions. Rather cold Thursday. Warmer Friday and in south portion Saturday. Colder Saturday in the north portion and in the south on Sunday. Rain or snow Thursday, ending Friday. Rain or snow again Sunday or Monday.

Is Maverick A Western?

Is "Maverick" really a Western? The Maverick brothers, Bret and Bart played respectively by Jack Kelly and James Garner), have been playing hob with the ratings of Steve Allen and Ed Sullivan and even occasionally Jack Benny and that leads to a lot of loose talk that the cash customers who buy soap want only Westerns. Actually, the Mavericks hail from New Orleans, are gamblers by trade and ply their shady profession all over the globe, including (quite recently) the South Seas.

If "Maverick" is a Western, it is one with a large wink. Much of the time the authors seem intent, not so much on doing a Western, as on ribbing the pants off Westerns. I ecall one script called "Gun Shy" which seemed intent on ridiculing the whole genus Western. This is the way Marion Hargrove, the author, starts it:

"This one is a little like the vignette they use on one of those low pressure Saturday night Westerns, but the similarity wasn't noticed until it was too late to do anything about it. We can only hope that nobody watches television on Saturday nights. Our own vignette opens on a long shot of a Western street: empty, silent and tense. A wi'e behind with a large revolver hung on it, crosses the frame so close to the camera that it's practically polishing the lens. The large gunman who is the Town Marshal, pauses for a shot in the foreground and we note that he is facing another man who stands way the hell down at the far end of the street.

"Suddenly the marshal does a lightning draw and fires at the heavy down the street. Then he looks puzzled as if he were missing some blue pages in the script and fires five times more. The guy at the far end of the street is still standing there. He leans toward us and calls out. We recognize the pleasant helpful tone as the voice of our hero, Bret Maverick:

" 'Shall I stand a little closer, marshal?' "

The whole tone, in short, is quite a lot different from "Gunsmoke." (Imagine Matt Dillon missing six shots! The whole social fabric of the West would come unstuck.) This particular episode was a bit more of a spoof on Westerns than most of them. The cast list, for instance, read in part like this:

BRET MAVERICK—A refugee from Warner Bros. submarine pictures.

FREDDIE HAWKINS—A mature cockney gentleman with black eyebrows and store-bought hair. A thorough-going thief, a congenital and gifted liar, a crafty and seasoned schemer of the highest criminal type.

MORT DOOLEY—Town marshal at Ellwood, Kansas. Large grim humorless and a sitting duck at all times.

AMY WARD — Thirtyish and decollete, the typical hard-but-wholesome lady saloon-keeper.

1ST INDIAN—Who has trouble understanding this Indian-talk jazz.

This particular caper dealt with a search for buried treasure in which Mort Dooley (shades of Matt Dillon) kept running Maverick out of town. Ran him out about four times. Every time Mort would buckle on his guns Amy would lay her hand on his arm, look up at him soulfully, and say: "Be careful, Mort."

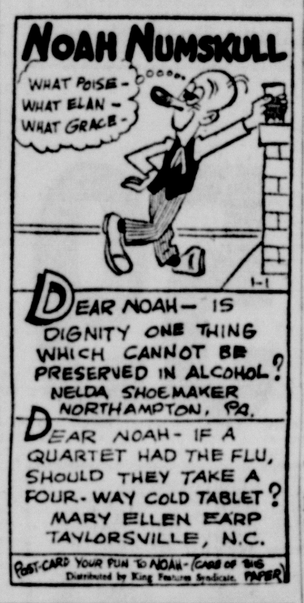

The Maverick brothers are incessantly mixed up in shady enterprises but they never profit from them, far as I can see. In this particular one, Bret finally found the treasure which turned out to be Confederate money. Not long ago, the Mavericks did a free-hand version of an old Robert Louis Stevenson story called "The Wreckers." In this one they got hold of a wrecked ship in the South Seas, only to dump the opium overboard virtuously instead of taking it back to the States and selling it.

In short, they are con men with a heart of gold—which limits the take pretty drastically. Their upbringing seems to have been done by Pappy, not Mommy, and their talk is constantly interlarded with such pearls of wisdom as: "I promised Pappy I'd never take a drink or a steady job." Or: "As Pappy always said—Faint heart never filled a flush." Not, you notice, an inside straight. Pappy had more sense than to encourage that sort of idiocy but he did teach the youngsters to welcome adventure, provided the odds weren't hopelessly against it.

Just the same a series that pokes fun at such sacred things as "Gunsmoke" indicates — not that Westerns are on the way up —but just possibly that they are on the way down.

more strictly to business during 1959, reducing time spent on luncheon clubs, golf, etc.

28. Good building land on the proper side of growing cities will continue to increase in price notwithstanding a decline in suburban building. Small farmers holding such land should not now sell.

29. Small farms without any suburban possibilities may well consider selling to adjoining farmers if offered a fair price in 1959.

30. Large commercial farms with latest machinery should prosper during 1959; but small farmers may not do so well.

31. Pending a serious war, there will be no radical change in the government's farm policy during 1959.

32. With less fear of serious war, the real estate situation in the larger cities may improve, but municipal taxes will increase.

33. Some suburban houses now owned by well-paid executives will come on the market in 1959, due to loss of positions or moves to other sections of the country.

34. Real estate mortgage money will be tighter in 1959 than in 1958. Furthermore, due to inflation, it will be worth less when due.

35. The demand for motels is largely satisfied; but there will be an increasing demand for very modern apartment houses—especially of the co-operative type. Old houses of all kinds will depreciate during 1959.

36. Woodland will continue to be in demand during 1959. This especially applies now to pine, which is used for the best lumber, and to spruce, which is used for pulp. Hold woodland in 1959.

37. More Russian imports of pulpwood may be expected in 1959; but this should largely be offset by the increased domestic demand for cartons and packages for shipping and displaying merchandise.

38. Both timber and oil reserves of Canada will gradually increase in value. I am bullish on many Canadian and African investments.

39. The greatest factor in determining the price of city land and businesses in general is the automobile and availability of parking and the decline of city property. Buying city real estate without nearby parking facilities is a great mistake.

40. I was wrong in my forecast a year ago as to the Dow-Jones Averages. Although many stocks sell lower today than a year ago, the Dow-Jones Averages — especially the Industrials—sell higher. However, I will again run the risk and forecast that they will sell lower sometime in 1959 than they do today.

41. My forecast of the bond market for 1958 was correct. I am inclined now to reverse that forecast in the case of long-term non-convertible corporate bonds—that is, they should sell for less sometime in 1959 than they are selling for today.

42. I continue to forecast that high-grade, cumulative, non-callable first preferred stocks will sell higher sometime during 1959 than they do today.

43. I repeat what I said last year regarding "cheap" stocks: "The large fortunes made in the stock market have come from buying non-dividend-paying common stocks at $5 a share or under. These will be the first to reach a buying level." If you are to buy these low-priced common stocks, you should seek companies without too much prior debt or cumulative preferred stock outstanding. They are the best common stocks for "capital gains."

44. Convertible bonds should hold up fairly well during 1959.

45. The best investment policy for 1959 is for one now to have a good bank account so funds will be available to buy bargains when a sufficient break comes in stocks, bonds, real estate, and commodities.

46. There will be many failures in hastily organized electronics, nuclear, and similar companies during 1959.

47. With two or three exceptions, railroad stocks should be avoided during 1959 and until a definite long-range program of government aid is assured.

48. For steady income and fair marketability, well-established utility stocks should be the best for conservative investors not looking for profit. This especially applies to cumulative first preferred non-callable utility stocks.

49. The three handicaps to American business are the fear of inflation, the fear of union labor leaders, and the fear of President Eisenhower's physical collapse.

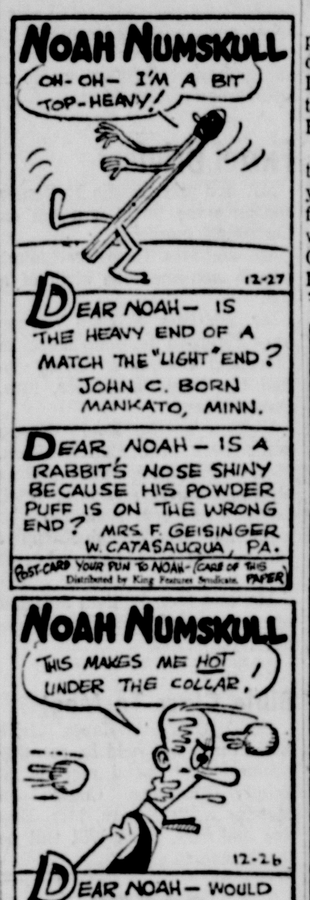

50. The three hopes for America are our churches, our schools, and a desire to "pay as you go!" For these to function properly we must depend upon the parents of our nation.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — The New Year is starting very well for Jack L. Warner, health-wise, and he's working every day from home. He's just bought Erskine Caldwell's new novel, "Claudelle English," from the galley proof. It soon will be brought out by Little Brown and Company, and since Erskine Caldwell wrote "God's Little Acre" and "Tobacco Road" you can guess this will be another best seller. Horton Foote arrives here Jan. 7 to write the script.

Now about a star. Well, I can tell you that it looks very much as if it will be Natalie Wood. No one came right out and said so, but I happen to know that now that Clint Walker and Warners have kissed and made up, it won't be long before Natalie is again drawing the pay which she hasn't for so many months.

Checked with Martin Manulis to see if it is true that his first TV show for 20th Century - Fox will star Esther Williams. He seemed to be amazed that I knew about it, and said it is perfectly true, that he is making a pilot film with Esther and his plan is for her to be starred one week and to introduce the guest stars the following week.

Said Martin, "the stories that Esther will do will be based on her fabulous career and things that have happened to her. The others will have nothing to do with Esther beyond the fact that she will be hostess of the show."

When Mabel Norman starred in "Molly O" in the early 20's, it was one of the big money makers of that period. Mabel was, if you'll pardon the word, adorable, and at her height. Few, if any, comediennes could ever touch her in talent and timing. Now I'm told that Leo McCarey has a date to meet with Mack Sennett after the new year to discuss the rights to "Molly O," with McCarey turning it into a musical.

I was sorry to miss Pat Smart's party for Debbie Daves, beautiful debutante daughter of Mary and Delmer Daves. She made her bow to society at the Las Madrinas Ball.

I was happy to be included in the guest list too, because the younger set were all out in full force. Debbie is a beauty and she was with her best beau, Sidney Garber, who is here from Boise, Idaho, with his parents.

John Huston, in town for a few days on business, huddled with Burt Lancaster about additional members for the cast of "The Unforgiven." Result — Charles Bickford and Kim Hamilton were added to the imposing list of Burt, Audrey Hpeburn, Audie Murphy, Lillian Gish and John Saxon. The picture goes Jan. 12 in Durango, Mexico.

John said when I talked with him: "I'd invite you to come visit us on location but I think it's pretty rough and I'd rather wait until I can offer you better facilities."

And here I looked forward to riding yonder in the purple hills on horseback with John by my side.

FACILITIES FOR TODDLERS

TOKYO (UPI) — Peiping radio reported Wednesday that 49 million small children were being cared for in Communist China's nurseries and kindergartens. The Communist broadcast said the growing facilities for toddlers were a "great benefit to Chinese mothers" who work in fields and factories.

Highlights Of 1958:

Joe Hemmis Cops National Honors, Fort Hill Wins State Cage Crown, 7 Holes-In-One Scored At CCC

Sentinels Unbeaten On Grid 2nd Year; Track Team Excels

By C. V. BURNS

Cumberland had one national and one state champion crowned in 1958.

National honors went to Joseph W. Hemmis professional motorcycle hill climber, who participated in 15 meets in five states, finished "out of the money" only once, and scored more points than any slant rider in the United States to dethrone Howard Mitzel, of York, Pa.

Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Fort Hill Sentinels gave Cumberland the Maryland Class "A" basketball championship by whipping Annapolis and Montgomery Blair at College Park after grabbing the W.M.I. League crown, the District One and C.V.A. League titles. Fort Hill's record was 8-5 late in January—then the Sentinels put on the great drive that enabled them to finish with 12 consecutive victories.

Retain Grid Title

Fort Hill continued to hold the top spot in football by rolling to its second straight unbeaten season (8-0-1) under its coaching wizard William P. Hahn. The Hilltoppers bagged the city championship for the fifth straight year and shared CVAL honors with North High of Hagerstown. The co-champs met and battled to a 6-6 tie and each school wound up with 5-0-1 marks. The Hahnmen were supreme locally with a 45-7 decision over LaSalle and a 21-6 win at the expense of Allegany before 6,446 paying patrons and a $4,851 gate Thanksgiving Day. The tie game with the Hubs is the lone blemish on Fort Hill's record in 19 games since late in the 1956 season. The Sentinels were 9-0 in 1957.

The Greenway Avenue school also continued its superiority in track and field in the county by taking both the senior and junior high meets. Then Coach Hahn's thinclads shook the Montgomery Blair jinx by beating the Blazers for the first time since 1954 in the Fort Hill Invitational and also romped off with the laurels in the CVAL tests here.

Fort Hill also had winners in bowling and girls basketball and shared the County Baseball League title with Allegany and Mt. Savage, the first time the race ever had ended in a triple tie. Coach Henrietta Snyder's sextet reeled off nine wins in a row to extend its 4-year victory skein to 45 games while the bowlers beat LaSalle in a roll-off for the Bi-State League championship. Ursuline Academy also posted a 9-0 record in basketball but the city's undefeated teams failed to renew relations that were broken off several years ago.

Two City Races Tied

In city competition, Allegany an Fort Hill tied in baseball and LaSalle and Fort Hill were even-Stephen in basketball in a series tha saw the Explorers clobber their crosstown rivals at Fort Hill, 80-52, then fall victims on their own court, 55-54, to a team that was going places. In the series finale, Fort Hill cracked LaSalle's two-year 20-game victory skein. The Explorers lost only one of 23 games during the regular season but ran into trouble in tournaments at Washington, D. C., and Newport, R. I., and wound up with a 23-5 mark.

The race for the W.M.I. Soccer League title ended in a deadlock between Bruce and Valley when Beall upset the Westernport eleven in the final game of the season. The Black Knights, incidentally, concluded their fifth straight season without a loss by finishing with four wins and as many ties.

Two Score Triples

Two players won "triple" crowns during the year. Gary Shook of Allegany High paced the basketball scorers of Cumberland, the W.M.I. League and the CVA circuit while Bill Koerner, Fort Hill back, led in football scoring in the city, area and CVAL. Bill also equalled two city records that were on the books since 1942 when he scored six touchdowns and 36 points in a single game.

West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney, coached by Donald Bullock, holds the distinction of being the only unbeaten and untied football team in the area with an 8-0 record, including 4-0 in the Potomac Valley Conference, and shared the title in that loop with Keyser (5-0). Coach Frederick "Tack" Clark's KHS team made it 25 wins in a row for the past five seasons in that circuit.

Mathias Tops PVC

Coach Jimmy Vance's Mathias High nine posted an 8-0 record to grab the P.V.C. baseball title for the first time, William "Huck" Miers' Piedmont High Lions (13-1) headed the basketball race and John R. Shelton's Keyser thinclads annexed track and field laurels. Piedmont had the highest winning percentage in area basketball with 22 wins and three losses.

An attempt was made to revive amateur boxing with a novice tourney after the sport had been dormant here since 1951 but the experiment proved unsuccessful and was a financial flop. Only one show was held and promoters took a loss of about $300.

In spite of a big dip in attendance, baseball, especially the small fry variety, continued to spread out all over the tri-state area. The Phillies took it all in the local Dapper Dan League while the Kiwanis Club and Lions Club shared the pennant and playoffs in the Hot Stove loop.

Perry Does It Again

Hyndman's Merchants and Barrelville's Old Exports were the best in the 8-club Pen-Mar League for the second straight year and "Junie" Perry of Grantsville wrapped up the batting championship in that circuit for the third straight season. Barton's Braves were repeaters in the Twilight League.

Interest in junior baseball among the American Legion posts of the Mountain District hit a post-war low when only Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 fielded a team.

Potomac State College came up with a pitching find in Brinkley "Bink" Barlow, of Cheltenham, Pa., who posted a 7-1 record for Coach John Fox's Catamounts. Lefty Bill Hook, Allegany; Wayne Fleegle, Mt. Savage; Russ Jones, Fort Hill; Harlan Liller, Romney; Gilbert Corbett, Paw Paw, and Lefty Doug Tucker, Martinsburg, were among the better schoolboy twirlers. Jesse Markley, former Fort Hill standout, topped Pen-Mar League slab artists and Grover Fazenbaker was best in the Twilight circuit. Johnny Price, of Kiwanis, was the pitching sensation in the Hot Stove League with a 10-0 record and an achievement of fanning 25 out of 27 batsmen he faced in a 9-inning game.

Golf had its biggest year in Allegany county with tournaments galore at the local Country Club and the Maplehurst Club, Frostburg.

Seven Holes-In-One

An all-time record was established at the Cumberland Country Club when seven holes-in-one were recorded. The previous high was six in one year.

The big event of the golf year here, the CCC Invitational for the Ol Export Bowl, was won by Mrs. Claude Richards, of Westminster.

Mrs. G. William Bibby, a veteran of the golfing wars, had one of her busiest years, participating in no less than six out-of-town tournaments, including two in Florida.

The annual sports car races attracted an estimated 40,000 persons to the Airport where Walter Hansgen of New Jersey won the main event for the second time in three years in record time. Denise McCluggage of New York, retained the women's championship.

Reynolds Thrills 'Em

Fairgo's third 12-day racing meet was its most successful and was highlighted by the sensational riding of Lawrence Reynolds, apprentice from Ohio, who booted home 25 winners. The daily betting average of $202,624 was the best here since 1951 and the handle of $290,043 on the first Saturday was highest since 1948.

Tris Speaker, Baseball; Ben White, Harness racing; Charles Strub, Horse racing; Herman Hickman, Football; Mel Ott, Baseball; Bill Corum, Sportswriter; Piggy Lambert, Basketball; Mort Cooper, Baseball; Peter Collins, Auto racing; Red Sanders, Football; Clarence De Mar, Track; Jackie Westrope, Horse racing

Baseball Race Ends In 3-Way Tie; Deaf Eleven Undefeated

Percentage of favorites winning was a near record 46.9.

Edgar H. McDonald, of Mineral county, the veteran of trapshooters in this area, remained in the spotlight by winning the West Virginia doubles and all-round titles at Leetown but the sport did a complete fadeout locally when the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club failed to hold any shoots.

Vets Show Class

Cecil Grimes' VFW team was the class of the Rocking Chair Softball League and Corriganville with Art Raygor, a 20-game winner performing, was tops in the County League. The competition was keen in the City League and the race wound up with the Germans and K. of C. sharing the championship.

Don Lilya's Loyal Order of Moose cagers defeated the Old Germans for the City League championship and Fritz Showers, Moose player, gave the fans something to talk about when he meshed 42 consecutive foul shots in four games.

In small fry basketball, McKendree Methodist and St. Luke's shared regular and post-season honors in the Sunday School League. Dickerson and Wesley went all the way in the Fearer Memorial League at Frostburg with an 18-0 record and Dick Blake's St. Mary's Gaels were best in the Catholic Youth League. In the latter circuit, St. Patrick's and SS. Peter & Paul were co-champions in football.

Coaching Changes

John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh stepped down as basketball coach at Fort Hill after 30 years service here and was succeeded by Wayne Boor. Norman F. Geatz, Jr. gave up the grid reins at LaSalle. Waldon Skinner left Frostburg State and Sid Roach moved from Paw Paw to Charleston. Ed Schwarz replaced Chet Payne as football coach at Allegany. Harold Cordts became Skinner's successor and Glenn Smith supplanted Roach.

Tommy Mont's resignation as Maryland's head football coach while under pressure came as unwelcome news here to the many friends of the one-time Allegany High athlete.

Among the oddities recorded during the year was Frederick High's feat of breaking six records in the CVAL meet here and losing out to Fort Hill and the no-hit game which Rich Smith pitched in the City Softball League and lost, 1-0, in the final inning on a muffed fly ball.

Taken By Death

Those connected with sports who were taken by death included Sam Rainey, Gilbert C. Cooling, Clifton "Tippy Fuller, Jim Stratton, Calvin Shipes, who played baseball and wrestled under the name of "Bill Cretchley," Charles R. "Huck" McFerran, "Fritz" Eiler, Dr. Albert Eskin and W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther.

The Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Good as it was, old 1958 leaves the world of sports with many a nasty hangover on New Year's Day.

Baseball has the biggest headache of all in the form of unfinished business "hung over" from the preceding year but no sport on the calendar swings into 1959 with a perfectly clear head.

Among the "aspirin" cases:

Baseball — Expansion, realignment and player money demands plague all owners. Pennant monopoly threat by the Yankees and Braves plague 'em all but the Yankees and Braves.

Boxing—Only "hot" matches in prospect are returns of Robinson-Basilio, Moore-Durelle and whatever happened to Floyd Patterson?

Tennis — Despite the spectacular Davis Cup showing in Australia, U.S. men still are either on the way up or the way down; U.S. women lost the Wightman Cup to Britain and Althea Gibson to a year's retirement; pro promoter Jack Kramer, at odds with Aussie brass hats, is threatened with disbarment from playing his pro troupe in any amateur arena anywhere in the world.

Service Schools At Odds

College football — Pacific Coast Conference is breaking up; Army, Navy and Air Force academies are at odds about playing each other.

Pro football — Booming but not everywhere; costs are up for travel, etc.; Chicago Cards and Pittsburgh Steelers need gate hypo though no one really is complaining yet.

Golf — Financially great; artistically, the rest of the world is catching up fast and U.S. swingers no longer dominate the big events.

Track and field — U. S. men still great in specialties but here, too, other nations are catching up.

Swimming — Australia has taken over.

Weight-lifting — Dislodging the Russians as world champs not likely soon.

Auto-racing — Bad hangover from that tragic spill at the start of the '58 500 - miler at Indianapolis.

Baseball In Turmoil

Baseball, which has had five major league franchises switched in the last six years, continues in a turmoil topping anything in the sports industry.

A special committee has been named to study the expansion of the majors in the face of a threat to form a third major league with New York included. Houston and Minneapolis are among cities clamoring for the majors.

Will it be 10 teams per league, a third major league or status quo?

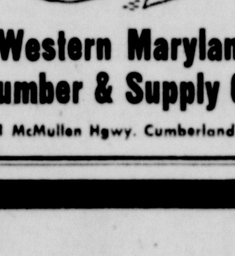

And with these items hanging fire from '58, there's the exploratory work done by player representatives in the matter of money. First there was a hint the players wanted a 25 per cent slice of television revenue. Then, instead, a request for a player payroll amounting to at least 20 per cent of each club's gross take.

And none of those hangovers will be cured by Jan. 2.

College Football Will Stage Five Bowl Contests Today

IN 45TH ANNUAL ROSE BOWL—Two of the finest quarterbacks in the land, Joe Kapp of California and Randy Duncan of Iowa, will pit their passing arms against each other in the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day. Others expected to play a major part in the 45th annual Rose Bowl event include California's halfback Jack Hart and fullback Billy Patton, and Iowa's halfback Bob Jeter and end Bob Prescott. (Central Press)

300,000 Fans Expected To Witness Tilts

Oddsmakers Predict One-Sided Games In Most Of The Bowls

By JOE SARGIS
United Press International

College football will stage five bowl games Thursday before about 300,000 spectators while hundreds of thousands of television and radio quarterbacks follow the head-knocking while nursing their hangovers at home.

The oddsmakers predict one-sided contests in most of the games, but they could be wrong. The unusual sight of snow ringing the Cotton Bowl turf at Dallas may indicate the underdogs can match such unlikely weather with some surprise touchdowns

California, Clemson and Syracuse get the chance to pull the big surprises. Coach Pete Elliott's California Bears are 18-point underdogs against Iowa in the Rose Bowl, Coach Frank Howard's Clemson Tigers are rated 15 points below unbeaten-untied Louisiana State in the Sugar Bowl and Coach Ben Schwartzwalder's Syracuse team is a 13-point outsider against Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

In Dallas where that snow figures to provide uncertain footing although the field has been covered, Texas Christian is favored over the Air Force Academy by eight points. Prairie View A&M is favored to defeat Langston in the Prairie View Bowl at Houston in Thursday's other game. It is the only one of the New Year's Day bowl games not being televised.

California Outweighed

Coach Forest Evashevski's Iowa team goes after the Big Ten's 12th triumph in 13 Rose Bowl meetings at Pasadena with Pacific Coast Confrence schools. Iowa, led by All-America quarterback Randy Duncan, compiled a 7-1-1 record in 1958. California (7-3) will be outweighed by about 25 pounds per man in the line, where football games usually are decided.

The usual capacity crowd of more than 100,000 will be in the Rose Bowl for this "granddaddy" of the post-season games. The game will be carried on NBC TV-radio, starting at 4:45 p.m., e.s.t.

Louisiana State (10-0) was the only unbeaten-untied major team in 1958. Clemson (8-2) will try to stop Coach Paul Dietzel's Louisiana State team before 80,000 Sugar Bowl fans at New Orleans.

Clemson will have to stop Billy Cannon, John Robinson and Warren Rabb, the backs who spark Louisiana State's winged-T attack. This game will be carried by NBC on TV-radio, starting at 1:45 p.m., e.s.t.

Sooners Favored

Oklahoma (9-1) is a stout favorite to beat Syracuse (8-1) although its No. 1 quarterback, Dave Baker, recently was lost to the team because of poor grades. In its last appearance in Miami's Orange Bowl, Syracuse took a 61-6 whipping from Alabama.

The Oklahoma-Syracuse game will be carried on CBS TV-radio, starting at 1:45 p.m., e.s.t. More than 76,000 are expected to jam the Orange Bowl for the game.

The Cotton Bowl contest pitting Texas Christian (8-2) against the Air Force Academy (9-0-1) looms as one of the day's best. Coach Ben Martin's Air Force squad, which ranked with Louisiana State as the surprise teams of 1958, was unbeaten and tied only by Iowa's Big Ten champions.

The possibility of soggy footing for this clash may make it a rushing duel between fullback Jack Spikes of Texas Christian and Steve Galios of the Air Force before 75,000 spectators. The game also will be carried by CBS on TV and radio at approximately 3:30 p.m., e.s.t., depending upon when the Oklahoma-Syracuse game is completed.

Underdog U.S. Davis Cup Team Stuns Australians

Americans Win With Olmedo, 3-2

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI)—An underdog U.S. team regained the Davis Cup from Australia Wednesday when a Peruvian, a hardboiled tennis promoter and a 70-year-old Californian combined to pull one of the biggest upsets in the challenge round's 58-year history.

Alex (The Chief) Olmedo, a Peruvian studying at the University of Southern California, stunned the world's No. 1 tennis nation by carrying the United States to victory in an unprecedented challenge round performance by an inexperienced player.

Olmedo clinched the victory by defeating Ashley Cooper, the world's top-ranked amateur, in Wednesday's first singles match, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 8-6. That triumph gave the United States an unbeatable, 3-1 lead and possession of the coveted cup for the first time since 1954. Mal Anderson made the final score 3-2 when he scored a 7-5, 13-11, 11-9 victory over Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, in the last match before 18,000 stunned fans.

Almost Left Off Squad

Olmedo accounted for 2½ of the U.S. team's three points against Australia although he never saw a cup match until he played against Italy two weeks ago in the inter-zone final. He got the underdogs off to a fast start Monday by upsetting Anderson, the world's No. 2 amateur, in the first match. Tuesday Olmedo teamed with Ham Richardson, of Arlington, Va., to give the U. S. a 2-1 lead by defeating Anderson and Neale Fraser in doubles.

Olmedo accomplished these feats after he almost was left off the U.S. team because he comes from Peru. But Jack Kramer, the professional tennis promoter, and Perry Jones, 70, who this year replaced Billy Talbert as captain of the American team, insisted that Olmedo be selected.

Olmedo was eligible because he had lived in the U.S. five years and also because Peru has no cup team.

Wednesday's first match was crucial because Anderson, the bow - legged Aussie cowboy, figured to whip MacKay in the last match.

Plays Like Champion

Cooper holds the Wimbledon, U.S. and Australian singles titles but it was Olmedo who played like a champion. Olmedo crashed Australian hopes when he broke Cooper's service in the fourth set with a beautiful cross-court shot to take a 7-6 lead and then served a love game to end the match.

"We did it, Cap! We did it!" Olmedo shouted, rushing into Jones' arms. The Peruvian's nerveless, three-day court display dissolved into tears of joy while he gave all the credit for his victories to Jones, Kramer and Kramer's top professional star, Pancho Gonzales.

"I want to give full credit to Mr. Jones, who has done so much for me since I came to live in the United States," Olmedo said. "When I led 2-1, Kramer told me to just keep playing the way I was except to occasionally run away from my backhand to upset Cooper. I did just what Kramer told me and it worked fine."

Thus Kramer, a former cup star who already had given professional contracts to Cooper and Anderson for their signatures, possibly hurt the gate appeal of his own future drawing cards to help his country regain the trophy.

Fort Hill Cagers Play In Martinsburg Friday

LaSalle Will Host Ridgeley; Romney To Invade Keyser

Fort Hill's Sentinels return to C.V.A.L. action Friday night when they tangle with Martinsburg High School's Bulldogs, conquerors of Allegany, on the West Virginians' court.

Martinsburg, making its initial start of the season Tuesday night, handed the Campers a "surprise package" in the form of a 67-64 defeat at Campobello after Coach Chet Payne's quint had won two of its first three outings in the league.

Fort Hill has two out of three games in the league this season and will be meeting Coach George Whitacre's quint for the fifth time since the circuit was formed in 1957. Martinsburg holds a 3-1 edge in the series. In 1957 the Bulldogs won here 49-40 and also at home 63-37. Last season Fort Hill won on its home court, 60-58, but lost in Martinsburg, 72-67.

LaSalle High's Explorers (2-5) will tackle the Ridgeley High Blackhawks (2-5) in a Friday night engagement at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

Coach Tom O'Connor's Blackhawks have dropped four games in a row while LaSalle has gone down to defeat in its last two starts.

Valley High School's undefeated Black Knights will be gunning for win No. 6 when they tackle the Alumni quint on the Valley court.

Three undefeated teams will swing into action tonight in the games listed in the Potomac Valley Conference. Romney High, setting the pace with a 4-0 record, invades Keyser to test John Shelton's Golden Tornado, victorious in its first two league outings.

Coach Gus Smith's Franklin Panthers, who are 2-0 in the conference and 6-0 overall, play hosts to the Petersburg High Vikings, who have split even in four P.V.C. engagements.

Moorefield's Yellow Jackets (2-2) clash with Mathias High School, its Hardy County rival, on the latter's court. Mathias has dropped three straight league contests.

"Pete" Vance's Wardensville High Warriors engage in a non-league game with Hedgesville High's Eagles at Wardensville. The Warriors will be making their 6th start of the campaign, having won three of five games played to date.

Homer Brooks' Frederick Cadets of the C.V.A.L. oppose North Carroll High at Frederick and Mel Henry's North Hagerstown Hubs (7-0) are scheduled to play the Owls at Westminster in other Friday night tilts.

Sonny Allen Stars With Marshall

Shines In Several Scoring Departments

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Sonny Allen, Marshall College's ball-hawking star, is one of the major reasons the Big Green has been tough this basketball season—and statistics today proved it.

Allen, 6-foot senior from Moundsville, already has scored 35 more points that he did all of last season, but more significant is the fact he ranks second only to Big Ivan Mielke in team rebounding. Mielke has 103 rebounds.

Allen has grabbed 61 rebounds and is second in scoring with a 15.6 average.

Allen also is second in field goal accuracy, with a .445 percentage. John Milhoan leads in this department with .453.

Fireball Leo Byrd has scored 244 points in Marshall's nine games for a sparkling average of 27.1. He has hit on 38.9 per cent of his field goal shots and a hot 84.8 per cent of his free throws, making 78 of 92 chances. Milhoan has .870 with 20 of 23.

Milhoan with a point average of 13.1 and Mielke with 11.4 give Marshall four double-figure scorers.

Market Closes Curtain On One Of Its Best Years

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market closed out 1958 at the best levels in history, rounding out the most active year since 1930.

Trading ended on a flurry that caused tickers to lag behind floor dealings. Turnover for the session totaled 3,970,000 shares, compared with 3,900,000 on Tuesday and boosted total volume for 1958 to 747,058,306 shares, compared with 559,946,890 in 1957 and with the 810,632,546 total in 1930.

There was a little profit-taking evident, particularly in the late dealings, but prices generally were higher with 632 issues closing higher out of a total 1,265 traded while only 384 were lower.

There were wide gaining features among the chemicals where Du Pont rose 5¼ to 213¾; aircrafts, with Cessna up 4 to 44½; drugs, where Warner Lambert climed 3¾ to 92¼ and in numerous miscellaneous issues.

Oils came in for attention and gains in the group ranged to a point to 2 in Standard of Ohio, Jersey Standard, Texas Co., Union Oil of California.

Motors were steady with Chrysler the feature on gain of ⅞ to 51¼ in the day's third heaviest volume. Chrysler was topped in the actives by Benguet Consolidated which held unchanged at 1¾ and Aluminium Ltd. which rose ⅞ to 33.

Play Safe While You Drive!

Keep alert—chew gum

Avoid traffic jitters and driving drowsiness. Chew gum while you're behind the wheel. Chewing helps relieve strain and tension—helps keep you feeling fresh and alert for safer driving. Chew any brand of gum you like but chew while you drive. Naturally, we recommend refreshing, delicious Wrigley's Spearmint Gum—for lively, satisfying flavor and real chewing enjoyment.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grains closed in a moderately higher trend Wednesday with prices steady to firm on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat closed off ⅛ to ½ cent; corn (old) off ¼ cent; (new) unchanged to off ¼ cent; oats off ⅛ to ½ cent; rye unchanged to off ½ cent; soybeans off 1 to up ⅜ cent.

Pre-holiday dullness quieted the session and prevented prices from straying too far from previous levels.

Mill and local broker buying pushed wheat higher. Hedge and some scattered selling pressure weighted down the advance, however, and carried prices slightly under Tuesday's close.

Active trade stirred the corn pit. After an active opening, prices eased off somewhat. One cash house was a good buyer of the new March delivery. Elevator houses bought May corn as commission houses sold July.

Little feature was apparent in either oats or rye.

Bigger than expected tenders on January soybeans threatened to pull prices down. But spreaders bought January beans and sold May in good volume. Light September and July offerings gave distant contracts strength.

Grains at outside markets were easy.

No "Third Force"

BELGRADE (UPI) — The official government newspaper Borba said Wednesday the seven-day visit of President Tito to Indonesia had shown the two countries had no intention of creating a "third force" between the East and West power blocs. The paper pointed out that Indonesia and Yugoslavia, with other so-called neutralist nations such as India and the United Arab Republic, were opposed to all blocs.

Opening lead: King of ♥.

Declarer received a gratuitous tip today from an opponent who began to gloat prematurely over his partner's alert defense. East's impropriety led to an abnormal play that enabled South to land the contract.

The bidding was straightforward and against three no trump West opened the king of hearts and was permitted to hold the trick. The continuation was ducked and declarer took his ace on the third round. A low spade was then led with the intention of playing the nine from the dummy. Conceding a spade at this point virtually assures declarer four tricks in the suit which with the five fast tricks in the other suits brings declarer's total to the objective.

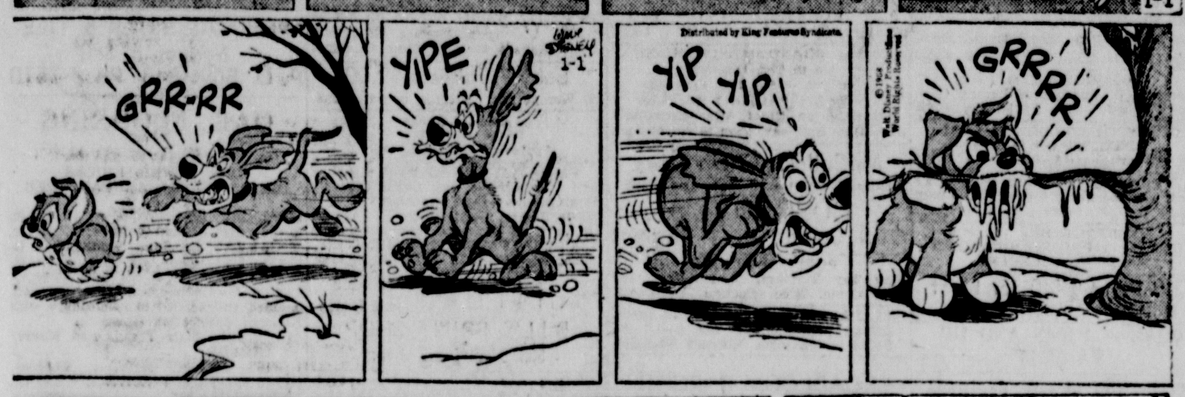

West, however, alertly inserted the ten of spades and thus prevented a duck in the suit, for if he were permitted to hold the trick he could cash enough hearts to set declarer down. So South went up with the queen and played the king to see if the jack would drop. He was on the point of playing a third round when East entered the scene with an ill timed compliment for West. "You're my favorite partner," he

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all those who were so kind to us in our bereavement, the death of our beloved son and brother, Robert "Chink" Walsh. We want to thank the minister, Rev. William C. Harpold, all those who sent floral tributes, loaned cars and anyone who helped in any way.

MRS. VERA SMITH and children,
MRS. CORA WALSH, Grandmother.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved Mother and Grandmother, Ida Alice Laurent, who passed away 14 years ago, January 1st, 1945.

Our family circle broken still,
Its bonds of love shall keep.
Holding the faith that mother taught,
Before she went to sleep.
Knowing that He who tends His Flock,
Shelters her with His sheep.

Sadly missed by SONS, DAUGHTERS and GRANDCHILDREN.

City Can Face 1959 Without Fear Of Flood

Vital Holes In Wall Have Been Filled

For the first time in its history, the City of Cumberland can face a new year without fear of devastating floods.

Work on the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood protection program will not be completed until late next spring, but all of the vital holes in flood walls along Wills Creek have been closed.

Structurally, Sections 2 and 3 of the Wills Creek phase are done. The E. J. Albrecht Company, Chicago, recently poured the last wall section near the B&O viaduct.

Rex E. Dexter, resident engineer for the Corps of Engineers, said Albrecht workers will be setting fence on top of the walls through the winter, and next spring must place topsoil and seed several areas.

A 42-inch industrial type fence is to be placed on top of the walls to discourage trespassing.

Near the Baltimore Street Bridge, the George F. Hazelwood Company has been pouring concrete in the bed of the creek and is getting ready to build flood walls on the east side.

This work could not be done until the temporary railway bridge was removed.

Remaining wall construction includes several hundred feet on the east side of the creek and the upper stages of a 60-foot section on the west bank.

Existing walls would protect the city if the 1936 flood were to be repeated before the project is completely built.

Remaining work in the creek will be done as weather permits during the winter.

Dimes Drive Plans Discussed

Last-minute plans for the annual March of Dimes drive in Allegany County were made yesterday when leaders of the campaign met at the Allegany County League for Crippled Children. The drive opens Friday and will continue through the month of January. Going over final plans, left to right, are Mrs. Elizabeth Nave who will head the Mothers March, Hugh A. McMullen, co-chairman, and Louis V. Shinnamon, general chairman. Workers hope to raise about $10,000 in the drive.

Army Offers Career Choice Enlistments

The Army, beginning with the new year, is offering the finest enlistment choice in its history, M/Sgt. Wesley C. Hartley, recruiter in charge of the local station has announced.

Under this new plan, he said, individuals enlisting may choose the exact career group in which they would like to receive training. Called the "Choose-It-Yourself" vocational training system, the new plan offers a young man or woman the opportunity to select service in an Army career group that satisfies individual desires and aptitudes.

The plan offers more than 50 career groups from which to choose, and as a result trainees are now able to receive the training they desire.

If a young man or woman wants to work in electronics and has an aptitude for that kind of work, the Army now guarantees on-the-job training or schooling in electronics after basic training is completed. This guarantee becomes a part of the individual's Army record at the time of enlistment.

In addition to electronics, other options of choice are combat; electrical maintenance; precision maintenance; military crafts; motor maintenance; clerical; graphics; general technical, and special assignment. Each of these areas, Sgt. Hartley explains, contains a number of career groups from which the applicant must make a choice.

For the present, Sgt. Hartley also noted, young men interested in serving in the Airborne can enlist directly for that branch, in addition to choosing assignment in a career group. More than 30 career groups are available for this dual choice.

Annual March Of Dimes Drive Opens Tomorrow

The annual March of Dimes drive in Allegany County will begin tomorrow and will continue throughout the month of January.

Louis V. Shinnamon, chairman, said last night that canisters have been distributed in various business establishments and clubs.

As in the past, local and area organizations plan to sponsor benefit dances, the proceeds of which will be turned over to the annual campaign in the battle against polio.

Hugh A. McMullen is co-chairman of this year's drive; Victor M. Hebb will be in charge of the South Cumberland drive; and Mrs. Elizabeth Nave will head the Mothers March.

Mr. Shinnamon said last night that on January 15 a televised program from a station in Harrisonburg, Va., will feature talent from Cumberland and will be presented on behalf of the drive.

He also said the Mothers March will be held on January 29. A door-to-door appeal for contributions will be made.

Although no goal has been set for this year's drive, it is hoped that the approximately $9,500 collected in 1958 will be met or surpassed in the drive which begins on Friday.

The chairman said the National Foundation has expanded its basis of operations to research toward discovering the cause and prevention of arthritis and birth defects.

Ruehl Case Decision Is Slated Soon

Judge Fraley Will Study Memorandums

A legal question in the trial of W. Ewald Ruehl, former resident charged with receiving stolen goods, was argued yesterday morning in Garrett County Circuit Court at Oakland before Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley.

Judge Fraley, according to a court attache, will look over memorandums submitted by both sides and presented yesterday during the court proceeding which began at 11 a. m. and finished about 12:30 p. m.

The judge is expected to render his decision in the case within the next several days, the attache added.

The question is whether a statement or confession can be admitted as evidence in Maryland without any corroborative testimony. That point was raised at Ruehl's trial on December 22.

At that time Judge Fraley requested the opposing attorneys to submit written memorandums on the question.

After oral arguments by both sides yesterday the written memorandums were presented to Judge Fraley for study. Stephen R. Pagenhardt, state's attorney, presented the state's argument.

The argument for the defense was presented by Dwight Stover of Oakland, and William A. Gunter of Cumberland.

Ruehl made three statements in the presence of Sergeant William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the Maryland State Police at LaVale. The statements were read by Sergeant Baker at the trial on December 22.

Fire Prevention Code Is Hailed By Chief Parker

May Boost Rating In Spring Survey

Cumberland's new fire code was hailed yesterday by Fire Chief Virgil Parker as a major 1958 accomplishment toward fire prevention.

The code, he said, was recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

It sets forth detailed regulations, based on recognized good practice, for the safeguarding of life and property from the hazards of fire and explosions arising from the storage, handling and use of hazardous substances, materials and devices.

Replaces Old Regulations

It also is designed to prevent hazards to life and property in the use or occupancy of buildings or premises.

Chief Parker said the code, contained in a 192-page booklet, replaces fire prevention rules which failed to keep pace with modern developments.

For instance, he said, the code sets forth very specific rules for safe handling of magnesium and its alloys. The old code, he added, contained no provisions for handling the metal, which is being used in some machine shops here.

The code provides, he said, that a supply of approved extinguishing powder for magnesium fires be kept within easy reach of each operator.

Other New Rules

The installation and operation of oil burning equipment is covered in six pages of the code.

Fire safety rules for bowling alleys, tire rebuilding plants, dry cleaning plants and service stations are included.

New bulk plants for flammable liquids are banned within the city limits.

Chief Parker said the new code will raise Cumberland's rating in the fire survey planned here next spring by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Grand Jury Will Meet

The 23 members of the Allegany County Circuit Court grand jury for January will meet at 10 a.m. Monday to receive their charge from Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris.

George M. Young, president of the Crystal Laundry Company, will serve as foreman.

Others on the grand jury include Lawrence R. Bromery, Jessie Robinson, Ivy G. Jones, Deneen Banks, James R. Dean, Herman L. Myers, Carl Goetz, Lawrence H. Shafferman, Mary E. Barkman, Albert W. Klavuhn, Charles E. Howell, George O. Thrush, Madeline V. Norris, James H. Littlefield Jr. and Dorothy A. Darber, all of Cumberland; Edgar H. Grove, Westernport; Joseph B. O'Brien, Eckhart; Elsie V. Williams, Esther Harvey, Walter Rank and Kathleen Todd, all Frostburg, and Adam Byers, Lonaconing.

Dawson, who has been charged with the embezzlement of $328 from the Perrin Food Market, was given a hearing before Magistrate Morris Baron in Trial Magistrate Court.

He is being held in the County Jail in default of bond.

City Firemen Get 4 Calls

Four fire calls, including a false alarm, were answered yesterday afternoon by city firemen of East Side and South End stations.

A small grass fire was extinguished on Shriver's Hill by firemen of East Side who received the call at 12:17 p. m. The blaze burned an area near the 700 block of Bedford Street.

At 2:57 p. m. firemen of South End station quenched a grass fire along the C&O Canal.

East Side firemen were called out again at 3:03 p. m. but the fire was out on arrival when they went to 437 North Waverly Terrace. Firemen said an electric wire on an iron became overheated and caught fire.

South End firemen received a false alarm at 509 Blackiston Avenue. The call came in at 4:43 p. m.

More Buildings Are Being Razed

More North Mechanic and North Centre Street buildings are going down.

The City Engineering Office has issued permits to the Cumberland Salvage Company to raze properties at 152-156 North Centre Street and for 141 North Mechanic Street.

The properties were owned by the Joseph Weinberg estate, according to the permits.

City Hall sources said the properties adjoin and will be made a part of the parking area which resulted from the razing of the Southern Hotel and adjoining buildings.

State Income Tax Forms Mailed Out

April 15 Deadline For Filing Returns

If the mailman has delivered your State of Maryland Resident Individual Income Tax Return forms for the calendar year 1958 —relax—and enjoy your New Year's celebration.

You have until April 15 to file your returns. That's over three months from today.

During the past week, local residents have been finding the forms in their mailboxes.

General instructions for filing a return are included in the letter from the Office of the Comptroller in Annapolis.

Residents will be able to pay their taxes at the local office of the Comptroller, 9 Market Street, where personnel will give them assistance.

Edward V. Welsh, office manager, said yesterday that a schedule will be set up whereby employes of the office will visit communities throughout Allegany County to assist taxpayers in filing their returns.

A return must be filed by every resident of Maryland when his gross income for the taxable year exceeds $800 if single or if married, and not living with spouse; or when gross income exceeds $1,600 if married and living with spouse.

A return must be filed by every resident having gross sales or receipts from a trade or business in excess of $5,000 regardless of the amount of the gross income.

Also, a return must be filed by every resident when the combined gross income of a husband and wife living together exceeds $1,600 or when their combined gross sales or receipts from a trade or business exceeds $5,000 regardless of the amount of gross income.

Regardless of the amount of gross income, a return must be filed in order to get a refund of any Maryland income tax withheld from wages.

County Board Seeks Savings In Institution

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners Tuesday afternoon sat down with officials of the county institutions to discuss ways in which costs might be reduced.

Commissioners John J. Rowan, John T. Mason and William A. Wilson met with Earl D. Grim, superintendent of the County Infirmary and County Home; Raymond G. Messmer, superintendent of Sylvan Retreat, and Dr. James E. McLean, county physician. Also present were Leslie J. Clark, county attorney, and James G. Stevenson, clerk to the commissioners.

One of the topics, according to Mr. Rowan, was the detention rooms at the Infirmary, which are used for juveniles awaiting trial. It was decided to notify Dr. William R. Allen, a representative of the Allegany County Youth Commission, suggesting that representatives of the commission discuss this matter with Mr. Grim and Mr. Messmer.

The problem involved in having drunks committed to Sylvan Retreat also was discussed. Mr. Messmer reported that during 1958, some 100 persons were committed to Sylvan Retreat temporarily because of their drunken condition. They were not mental cases but the county had to assume the obligation of providing medical examinations and food for these persons.

Space in a barn on the county property was found where it was believed certain emergency Civil Defense equipment might be stored. William G. Barger, Civil Defense director, was requested to check the area to see if it is suitable.

Reports Are Asked

Earl D. Chaney, president of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, has asked all committee chairmen to present reports on activities for the six-month period ending yesterday.

Babson Predicts More Inflation, Labor Troubles, Strong Business Competition In '59

By ROGER W. BABSON

1. Not too good and not too bad. Both the boom and the recent recession will be awaiting developments following the recent November elections.

2. 1959 will be a "do nothing" year for Congress. Both parties will hold their cards close to their chests until 1960—when the Republicans will want good business. Most Democrats will vote for most of the inflationary legislation; but only a few of these Congressmen will vote for such legislation over the President's veto. The Democrats will be in a dilemma. In their hearts they will not want good business in 1960; but they must be very careful not to do anything which could be held against them in 1960.

Every act of Rockefeller's and of other leading Presidential candidates of both parties will be carefully scrutinized to analyze their vote-getting possibilities for 1960. We will comment on these possibilities in our Forecast for 1960 a year from now.

3. So long as Russia is fearful of China's loyalty, she will not intentionally start a shooting war. I hope that Chiang Kai-shek will come to his senses so that China will become an ally of the United States. Marshall surely bet on the "wrong horse" when he made his report to Truman.

4. Our national budget will show a heavy deficit in 1959. This and other factors should cause a continued gradual, although not dangerous, inflation.

5. Serious competition will continue at all levels in 1959. Manufacturers, merchants, and others who reduce advertising and other selling appropriations will surely suffer.

6. Despite competition, the profits squeeze will be eased for many concerns by strenuous cost-cutting programs and improving business.

7. More foreign goods will enter the United States during 1959. This especially applies to German, Italian, Japanese, and Russian goods.

8. New cargo ships, built in Japan, England, Germany, Norway, Sweden, and Italy, will be launched in 1959. This should result in most American-built and American-registered ships operating at a loss. More subsidies will be demanded.

9. Failures may not increase during 1959. Some big corporation, now listed in the Dow-Jones Averages, may get in financial difficulties.

10. Federal cost-of-living figures will be disputed in 1959. Labor rates and wages which have been tied to the federal tables will be disputed by both Labor and Management.

11. On the basis of the above statements, I forecast, on the average, no wide change in 1959 for commodity prices. The recent recession is not over. Russia is still fighting us with an economic war.

12. There will be more strikes and labor troubles in 1959 than in 1958. Due to fear of unfavorable labor legislation and poor business conditions, labor leaders were on their good behavior in 1958.

13. It is now difficult to forecast the unemployment situation for 1959. Owing to the increase of automation, working forces will continue to be cut. Looking ahead to the elections of 1960, manufacturers, who are mostly Republicans, will want no more serious unemployment to occur.

14. Many plans for expansion of plants were postponed during 1958 for fear of a real depression. Some of these plans will be executed in 1959, although on a more moderate scale.

There will be a need for continued economic readjustment in 1959; but the playing of politics by both parties may temporarily postpone it.

15. 1959 will not see any marked change in money rates. However, borrowers who have not established good credit will continue to find it difficult to get new funds in 1959.

16. This means that it should be more difficult, on average, to sell long-term bonds in 1959 than in 1958. Buy only non-callable serial bonds or bonds of reasonably short maturities.

17. The supply of non-taxable state, municipal, and revenue bonds will increase during 1959. This will be due both to less readily available credit and to rising needs of municipalities.

18. The "fly-in-the-ointment" will be the uncertainty of the federal policy regarding the new $30,000,000,000 roadbuilding program. Will it compete with or protect toll roads recently built? I believe this program will not harm outstanding Turnpike Bonds.

19. Many investors will switch from stocks into bonds in 1959, thus obtaining both higher income and better security.

20. As inflation becomes more serious, only short-term bond issues — other than convertible bonds—should be held to maturity. Bonds should no longer be considered good "permanent" investments unless they are non-taxable or convertible on a reasonable basis.

21. The best investment policy during 1959 will continue to be a well-diversified portfolio — of stocks, short-term bonds, and cash. Every conservative investor will keep one-third of his portfolio liquid, to have funds available in case of a sudden very severe drop in the stock market. This will come some day.

22. As the 1958 Congress has not accomplished more in correcting abuses in the Teamsters Union, the 1959 Congress will do little to improve the labor situation. Therefore, invest in companies which will not be subject to strikes. Banks and utilities probably are the most nearly immune.

23. The Taft-Hartley Act will not be amended, nor will labor's exemption from anti-monopoly laws be removed, until after the 1960 election. Labor leaders will get more and more power until —with Russia's help—they bring on a real depression.

24. Due to unemployment and the difficulty of borrowing funds for installing automation (automatic factories), the machinery industry will continue quiet during 1959.

25. I now see no probability that either wages or retail prices will be "fixed" during 1959 unless Russia threatens World War III.

26. Most wageworkers will be more efficient during 1959, which should enable some managements to increase their productivity and profits.

27. Executives will attend
